VANCOUVER (CP) — A dressing gown worn by Mr. Justice Sidney Smith when he was burned to death 10 days ago was as inflammable as a sheet of newsprint, Coroner Glen McDonald said Monday.

The coroner said the material in the garment was light-weight, loosely-woven viscose rayon.

A coroner's inquiry found that the jurist died accidentally when a sleeve of his dressing gown touched an electric hotplate burner and caught fire.

Challenge To Reds Applauded

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker uncorked a vigorous Western counter-offensive against Soviet Premier Khrushchev Monday, accusing him of giving lip service to the United Nations while at the same time threatening to wreck it. (See also Page 21.)

The Canadian leader challenged Russia to resume negotiations on the "paramount" issue of disarmament and he won enthusiastic applause when he told Khrushchev to heed his own advice on colonialism.

POLICY SPEECH

Making Canada's policy speech before the 15th General Assembly, Diefenbaker was the first Western chief of government to reply in the UN to Khrushchev's demand that the office of UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld be scrapped and replaced by a triumvirate.

While the battle built up between East and West on the UN question, Hammarskjöld himself made a surprising entry in the assembly debate at the opening of Monday's session defending his impartiality, particularly in the Congo crisis.

GREAT HOPES

Diefenbaker said he had nourished great hopes for the visit of Khrushchev and had been prepared to accept "any good suggestion" from the Russian.

Khrushchev had engaged in a "gigantic propaganda drama of destructive misrepresentation, launched a major offensive in the cold war while giving lip service to the United Nations which, in Canada's opinion, would be destroyed by his proposal for a triumvirate."

PROLONGED APPLAUSE

Diefenbaker received prolonged applause at the end of his address.

Khrushchev was not present when Diefenbaker spoke, having left the assembly to attend a luncheon given by Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland financier.

But the Russian chief of state was there when Czechoslovakia's President Antonin Novotny — first of the Eastern European Communist leaders to take the rostrum — supported the Russian proposals and the attack on Hammarskjöld.

Argentina's Foreign Minister Di Genesio Taboada, however, praised Hammarskjöld for "impartiality, wisdom and firmness."

Cuba Warned

U.S. Will Fight If Base Grabbed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, said yesterday the United States would fight back "very fast" if Cuban Premier Fidel Castro tried to seize the big U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba.

Although he did not outline what kind of action this country would take, he said "we wouldn't have to move off the base." (See Page 8.)

At the same time, Sen. George Smathers urged that the American republics set up a military force composed of personnel from both North and South American nations as a barrier against possible aggression by Castro's Cuban army.

Threat to the huge naval base was raised last week by Raul Castro, who said Fidel Castro had been insulted in New York and that Cuba could retaliate by throwing the United States out of Guantanamo.

Red Man on the Moon? 'Historic' Answer Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—Speculations about a man on the moon mounted Monday with Russia's announcement that today will be important in world history.

Exactly what the Russians are up to is a secret. Guesses include the possibility that they may reveal a human being is in orbit or already on the moon. Khrushchev's trips abroad in the past have been accompanied by announcements of Soviet scientific achievements. And he told reporters Sunday that "everything is ready" for a Soviet attempt to put a man in space.

Moscow radio for days has been broadcasting that today is a day to be watched. Ham radio operators in the United States have received Moscow radio messages telling them to pay attention to today which it said Russia will make "a day in the history of the world."

Big Blaze Injures Firemen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five firemen suffered minor injuries Monday night when the second floor of a building collapsed during a $1,000,000, three-alarm fire in central Vancouver.

Fireman Ron Williams, 27, was taken to hospital with a leg cut, suffered when he was forced to leap from a window as the roof of the building collapsed at the height of the blaze.

The blaze broke out in the industrial section in the wholesale drygoods building of Hamilton Harvey Ltd. Goods inside were insured for $500,000.

Detectives Ready But Robbers Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Police director J. Albert Langlois Monday announced a shakeup in the holdup squad because of a $50,000 robbery last Friday in a building guarded by four detectives.

The robbery was at the Provincial Transport Company's east-end terminal. Three masked gunmen escaped with the company's weekly payroll 10 minutes after an armored car had delivered it.

Director Langlois said police had received a tip a week before the robbery that the hold-up was planned. Four detectives had been posted to watch the building every day. In spite of the guard, the gunmen entered the building, committed the robbery and made their escape. He said they passed several of the hidden detectives without drawing fire.

Smoky in Cat Fight

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Where there's smoke there's fire . . . but Oak Bay council came under fire last night for firing Smoky.

Not Smoky the Bear who fights forest fires, but Oak Bay's Smoky the Cat who has been official greeter and rodent eradicator at Fisher's confectionery store, 2205 Oak Bay Avenue, for the past 14 months.

FINAL READING

The council last night gave final reading to a "Food and Food Establishment Sanitation Bylaw" which excludes animals from food stores.

It received and filed a petition signed by Smoky's owner, Mrs. L. M. Fisher and almost 180 other persons, asking for Smoky to be specifically excluded from the provisions of the bylaw.

"While we do not presume to question the merits of this proposed bylaw, we do feel it has been slanted in our direction due to the fact that our pet cat Smoky is the only cat we know of in Oak Bay who acts as official greeter and rodent catcher on his owner's business premises," the petition stated.

BEFORE BYLAW

"... As Smoky was in residence here before the proposed health bylaw was introduced and no one has suffered any ill effects from his presence, we respectfully request that our beloved pet, Smoky, be allowed to remain with us at 2205 Oak Bay Avenue to continue his good work as rodent guard and catcher."

Told last night that the bylaw had passed and Smoky would have to stay out of the store, Mrs. Fisher emphatically denied it.

"Oh no he doesn't," she said. "He will not get out. We are going to fight this, believe you me."

NO MICE

"We haven't seen a mouse since we got him . . . and we had plenty before. There isn't a thing unwrapped in our store. We have a cover on the (deep) freezer and he sits there all day."

The Municipal Act, which provides for health regulations similar to those passed last night by Oak Bay council, also prohibits council making any exceptions to its bylaws.

EARLE WESTWOOD

DAN CAMPBELL

Westwood, Campbell, Corbett

Social Credit yesterday made a clean sweep of three cliffhanging constituencies whose results were still in doubt after vote-counting ended temporarily on the night of Sept. 12.

Counting of absentee ballots in the three ridings yesterday brought official declarations from the trio of returning officers.

TINY MARGINS

Declared re-elected by tiny margins over CCF adversaries in all three ridings were Recreation and Conservation Minister Earle C. Westwood in Nanaimo and the Islands, Dan Campbell in Comox and Irvine F. Corbett in Yale.

CCF candidates in Yale and Comox are expected to seek official recounts.

Mr. Westwood saw his 112-vote lead of Sept. 12 cut to a mere 70 votes yesterday.

SLIPPED BACK

Mr. Corbett slipped back into office on the strength of a 25-vote majority and Mr. Campbell with an edge of 38 votes.

Following announcement of the Comox result shortly after 2 p.m. yesterday the constituency's CCF candidate, Frank Wood, said he would seek a recount.

Following the initial count on Sept. 12 Social Credit's Campbell had a 116-vote lead over Mr. Wood, and CCF Leader Robert Strachan had strong hopes his party would win the seat when the absentee ballots were counted.

BENNETT BEAMS

Premier Bennett yesterday beamed at reporters who met him in a legislative buildings hallway and informed him of Mr. Westwood's narrow victory, but appeared unsurprised.

Asked if he didn't think the Nanaimo and Comox victories were particularly significant because of the heavy labor vote in both ridings, he smiled and said, "I thought the entire outcome of the election was significant."

WESTWOOD PLEASED

Mr. Westwood told the Colonist, "I was particularly pleased because there is so much to be done in my particular field in B.C."

The three victories confirmed party standings in the new legislature as Social Credit 32, CCF 16 and Liberals 4.

Results in the three ridings came as a surprise to many because it was thought the absentee ballots would be overwhelmingly for the CCF candidates.

CCF SUPPORTERS

Nanaimo and Comox absentee voters were largely loggers and commercial fishermen, traditional CCF supporters.

Final count in Nanaimo was Westwood 4,621, Cameron 4,551, Mortinson (Comm.) 70, Heath (L) 1,036, Strongtharm (PC) 605.

In Comox the count was Campbell 6,102, Wood 6,064, Baikie (L) 2,747, Higgin (Comm.) 207, Gray (PC) 665. Yale results were Corbett 1,126, MacDougall (CCF) 1,101, Collett (L) 964, Lauder (PC) 388.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

Last week my wife and I went to the supermarket. We spent one hour and $27.99. This wasn't one of the regular shopping trips to stock up on staples like meat or vegetables; on the contrary — it was a Tuesday afternoon spur-of-the-moment affair.

My wife said she needed some more baby food and a couple of other things so we went in. By the time we got out, we were loaded down with four tremendous bags.

Of course I know that as a husband I'm supposed to grumble at such things and blame my wife for reckless

What's Better?

Window shopping is fine, but walking through aisle after aisle and picking up whatever strikes your fancy — what could be more wonderful?

Some nine years ago an old Viennese friend of mine visited the United States for the first time. He stayed at our house and used it as a base for his New York City sightseeing. Mostly, however, I seem to remember, he accompanied us to our local supermarket and drank in its sights and sounds. Nothing — not the Empire

Even Piccalilli

When we came home and emptied the four bags, we'd bought among other items: crunchy fried pork rinds, kosher dill pickles, mixed nuts, pizza mix, ice cream with mint fudge topping, V-8 juice, a dozen varieties of breakfast foods, liver pate, sardines in mustard, gorgonzola cheese, Jewish rye bread, a round loaf of Italian bread, frozen Hawaiian punch, miniature tootsie rolls, instant au gratin potatoes, "beefaroni," Swedish rye crisp bread, Pilsener beer and Piccalilli.

We both felt sort of intoxicated. I always do after one of those expeditions — it's like a woman buying a new hat.

To me, there is no more sure-fire remedy for low spirits than a leisurely walk through the aisles of a supermarket — picking up such ridiculous items as diced cheese for parties, "dipsy daddies" or fortune cookies.

The lift you get is cheap at the price.

Your Good Health

Do Not Give Children Pills To Cut Down Their Weight

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD

What about "reducing pills" for children? To remove all doubt, it is my firm opinion that a young child should not be given them.

I have in mind a letter concerning a boy of four, clearly overweight, who has shed some pounds by taking such medication, but note this excerpt: "He became very tired by four o'clock, which is very unusual for him, and he cried easily."

Naturally, what else could be expected, when the little fellow's system is being overstimulated? It may not always be easy to control a youngster's weight by diet—but it can be done.

With proper feeding, enough low-calorie foods to give his stomach an adequately full feeling, along with the necessary vitamins that are contained in many low-calorie foods, a child of four can be led gradually and safely toward normal weight, and toward normal eating habits that will be good for him all his life.

Another letter is about a girl of 14 who is "5-feet-three and weighs 175 pounds. She has always been rather heavy. The doctor doesn't think she has any glandular disturbance. She has very little interest in life—a very difficult child to understand in every way."

Again I say, "Of course." At 175 pounds, she's "the fat girl" to all her friends and playmates. Off to a wrong start in life, a child substitutes eating to compensate for being emotionally starved. Or some do, at any rate.

Actually, not very many cases of obesity are the result of glandular disturbances, but in this particular case one can't help but wonder whether a child with "very little interest in life" may not, at least, have some thyroid deficiency. In such a case (after proper and not-very-difficult metabolism tests) it may turn out that modest use of thyroid extract can do wonders in encouraging normally brisk interest and activity.

I do not mean that this will solve the entire problem. She'll have to learn or re-learn normal eating habits, but as she begins to see progress, she may very well become much interested in keeping the improvement going.

And one more question, not aimed at the young folks:

"Are reducing pills and appetite curbers the same thing?"

Yes, There can be (and are) some differences in drugs used for this purpose, but they all sum up to the same thing. The drugs to "curb the appetite" decrease the desire for food because the body is—for the time being—burning up its accumulated reserves of fat. Hence the body's urge for more food is short-circuited.

Some people are more sensitive to such drugs than others, so some can stand them much longer. But such medications don't do a solitary thing toward training your appetite.

Disease, Decay Move In

Epidemics Threaten, Schools at Standstill

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The 11-week-old Congo Republic is declining rapidly in disease and decay, a report to the UN said Monday.

Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld's top representative in the Congo, Rajeshwar Dayal of India, said in his first progress report:

• The 13,700,000 Congolese have been left without the most rudimentary means of conducting a civilized society.

• They are faced with an ominous threat of smallpox and plague epidemic, but less than 50 of the 400 hospitals throughout the country have doctors.

• The judiciary and court system has "collapsed."

• Surface transportation, "paralyzed" during the height of the domestic political crisis in July, now is running "on an uncertain basis," and communications are primitive.

• Tax revenues of the government have "dropped very considerably" and expenditures for necessary administrative facilities have fallen off in proportion.

• Public education has come to a virtual standstill. Only 17 native Congolese are university graduates and none are engineers, architects or college-level teachers.

• So many farms have been abandoned the UN command has no way of establishing an accurate count.

• Industry and mining has been gravely affected by the mass departure of Belgian technicians.

Make People Like You!

Begin Again To Find Personality

By LELORD KORDEL
(Second in a Series)

How mature and well-adjusted is your personality?
Do you have the ability to make and carry out intelligent plans for your future?

Do you have a unifying philosophy of life, and the habit of living by principles instead of by emotionalized decisions of the moment?

Are you able to take responsibility, survey your abilities and limitations, and make the most of them?

Can you accomplish what you set out to do, laugh at your mistakes, and see yourself as others see you?

When you can answer these questions in the affirmative, you have a personality that is confident, that has a muscular output much greater than that of the man who feels whipped. The defeated personality slumps in fatigue, feels that his strength is limited, and becomes discouraged and further fatigued.

He may be a breakfast-skipper, who robs himself of potential alertness and efficiency during the late morning hours. He is quite likely a victim of the insidious high-carbohydrate diet.

Lose Five Years' Life

No manufacturer of high-calorie foods ever tells his overweight customers, "Eat less of my product!" Yet by consuming as many as 200,000 excess calories during your lifetime, you will reduce your life expectancy about five years.

The defeated personality advertises his failure to the world in his posture, his walk, the tone of his voice, and his mannerisms.

He doesn't eat enough muscle-building protein to enable him to straighten his shoulders, hold his head high, raise his chest and breathe deeply.

He can't step out with a firm and confident stride, because his blood sugar is too low.

His voice becomes old and tired, and his starved nerves cause mannerisms that are fussy, nervous, and the product of uncontrolled tensions.

You Don't Have to Be!

You don't have to be! No doubt, you've always intended some day to start eating the foods that will build a stronger body and a more positive personality. Some day. But when?

What's wrong with now? Start this important journey one step at a time, learning and growing with each successive step, and you'll find your progress easy.

The starting point is a place called Beginning Again.

Personality may be compared to a small stream in its continuous flow through life. And like life, your stream is in a constant state of flux; changing with every day that it exists.

Your personality becomes your individual mode of striving to meet your needs and to manage the demands of your social reality.

Your needs are forged by your style of life. Yet your personality can forge a new style of life for you.

It is in your power to prevent or overcome much illness.

B.C. Fire Bill Approaches $5,000,000

British Columbia firefighting costs for 1960 soared closer to the $5,000,000 mark last week as the forest service reported 64 new blazes in the woods.

Up to yesterday forest officials reported total cost so far this year has reached $4,633,582, an all-time record.

By comparison, cost of extinguishing all fires up to this time last year was a mere $694,627.

Close to 4,000 forest fires have been reported in the province during 1960.

Weekend Loss $1,500

Cracksmen Hit Here

More than $1,200 in cash and about $300 in goods were stolen by thieves in five weekend strikes here. One job, the biggest, bore the mark of skilled professional cracksmen.

In this job, thieves hacked a hole through the roof of the Plaza Drug Store in Shelbourne shopping centre.

Once inside, they knocked the dial off the store safe and punched the spindles to gain entry. From the safe they took about $900 in cash and $100 in cheques.

ANOTHER $300

They also stole about $300 worth of watches, cigarette lighters, pens, electric shavers and cigarettes.

Between $175 and $200 was stolen from a service station where entry was, by mischance, made easy.

MONEY BAG

A door to the office had been broken and a money bag stolen from a shelf. It was the first time, he said, that any large amount of money had been left overnight.

A break-in overnight Saturday at Gorgeview Grocery, made through a back window, apparently was in vain. Nothing was reported missing.

Nothing was missing after break-ins at Quality Welders, 952 View, and the homes of A. Heard, 1149 Clifford, and W. J. Stephens, 1445 Clifford.

Worthy of the Occasion

IT WAS a painful contrast at the United Nations yesterday. On the one hand Prime Minister Diefenbaker spoke for the West in a powerful plea worthy of the occasion and of the dignity of the world organization. On the other Premier Khrushchev behaved like a ham actor and spoiled brat in his angry outburst following the speech of Mr. Dag Hammarskjöld.

Were it not that he is the bully-boy leader of one of the world's chief protagonists Mr. Khrushchev would have no right in UN company. As an individual he does not belong in the category of responsible statesmen.

Mr. Diefenbaker rightly castigated the "cynicism" of Soviet leadership in the realm of disarmament and came strongly to the defence of the UN secretary-general in dismissing the Khrushchev proposal for a Soviet-styled UN secretariat as "absurd". No one, either East or West, can view the latter as other than an open-faced attempt to bring the UN under Soviet dominance.

For Mr. Khrushchev it is a case of "either play the game my way or I don't play at all," an alarming sentiment to be voiced in a gathering of the world's responsible statesmen.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's earnest plea for a return to negotiation as the only means of settling international difficulties and his broad offer of Canadian aid to native and under-developed peoples was underlined with solemnity when he concluded "Let us not leave this place without some hope for mankind. . . This could be our last chance."

So it could be, if the Khrushchev attitudes are any criterion, and Mr. Diefenbaker's words must have found echo in the hearts of most of his listeners.

The prime minister spoke for mankind when he renewed Canada's call for an end to nuclear arms and appealed for the only kind of disarmament that would bring security to the world's fears. His repeated offer to Russia, a direct challenge to the Soviet premier sitting near him, to open Canadian Arctic territory to Soviet inspection in return for a similar concession on Russia's part, was proof of the sincerity with which this country regards its obligations towards peace.

Mr. Diefenbaker was the spokesman of the West yesterday, and he upheld the quality which marks real statesmen faced with a world crisis.

In his defence of the UN and his humanitarian outlook towards the needs of the under-privileged he set forth the only course by which nations might proceed in harmony towards the goal of peace and justice to all.

Dr. Nkrumah's Plan

AS might be expected, Prime Minister Nkrumah of Ghana has allied himself with Soviet Premier Khrushchev's views on Africa in an obvious attempt to increase his own personal sphere of influence over the newly independent states.

Lining himself up solidly behind the Russian demand that colonial powers get out of Africa, Dr. Nkrumah renewed his attack on the make-up of the UN Congo force. He has called for the immediate withdrawal of all white troops in the force and the adoption of a proposal that African nations only be employed in bringing about law and order in the strife-torn country.

This apartheid-in-reverse policy would suit Dr. Nkrumah's ill-concealed hope of bringing about a united bloc of African nations under his leadership. In his claim that African countries are capable of handling the Congo affair by themselves is buried the fact that all of the black nations south of the Sahara, only Ghana has an efficient fighting force.

The Ghana troops are well equipped and superbly trained. In two world wars as British Colonial troops they have distinguished themselves as members of the Royal West Africa Frontier Force and the Gold Coast Regiment. That their effectiveness has not diminished in any way since those days is evidenced by their recent faultless conduct in the Congo.

If Dr. Nkrumah makes his point stick, the Congo will be forced into a position of subservience to Ghana with little or no hope of ever gaining complete independence for its own people. Worse still, through Dr. Nkrumah's affinity with the Soviet Union, Communism would be given a solid foothold in Central Africa.

Let Someone Else Look

AS always in recent years, the problem of education finance took leading place in discussions of the Union of B.C. Municipalities at the convention in New Westminster last week. Though the subject was debated at great length, the upshot of this phase of the conference leaves the union's position much as before.

The meeting appears to have been of one mind as to the economic need of all municipalities for relief and for the provincial government to take over a much larger proportion of the cost of maintaining the schools. The only disagreement of any importance was over the terms of redistribution of a burden which is fast becoming intolerable to those who pay property taxes.

Some elements insisted that the province should assume the entire cost, establishing education as a state responsibility. In the end, however, by narrowly defeating a resolution to that effect the UBCM reaffirmed its belief in the Mursion formula of a year ago which would transfer most of the load to the provincial treasury but leave enough of the cost of school building on the municipalities to encourage local interest in education.

Against the argument that local regions would be unwilling to surrender their jurisdiction it was stated emphatically that they have in fact nothing much to lose since the province has assumed virtually all the autonomy they once had. That is a contention which is pretty well unanswerable, loathe as the boards may be to admit it.

So for all the discussion at the convention—and very useful discussion it was—the union's position remains unchanged. It's a safe wager that the government's only response will be a formal acknowledgement of the submissions.

Since the UBCM obviously is getting nowhere with solutions of its own devising, would it not be wiser to press the government to have the whole question of education finance submitted to independent and unbiased examination? There has not been such a study since the Cameron Commission reported 15 years ago.

Both the government and the union, representing the municipal taxpayers, are too close to the problem to see it clearly. It needs impartial review. If an independent examination of the curriculum by the Chant Commission is necessary, surely one of the division of cost is more so.

The Royal Society

Instrument of Higher Ends

(From The BBC London Letter)

THE task of men of science, and their responsibility for good and evil in the world, has always been a subject of debate. Fresh discussions on the theme have been aroused this year by the 300th anniversary celebrations of the Royal Society, which brought distinguished men of science to Britain from all over the world.

Founded by Charles II in 1660, the Royal Society for Improving Natural Knowledge had its beginnings from about the year 1649 under the impulse of Dr. John Wilkins, then Warden of Wadham College, Oxford, and was strongly influenced by the ideas of Sir Francis Bacon who had earlier advocated the experimental method of research—then a revolutionary idea.

In his tercentenary address the president of the Royal Society, Sir Cyril Hinshelwood, referred to some of the complaints levelled at the early members of the society: Atheism, impiety, subversion, the encouragement of great expense of spirit in the pursuit of vain truths, and challenge to the authority of the universities were some of the objections raised to the new doctrine of free enquiry.

"Every anxiety, misgiving, criticism, or reserve voiced today has been countered by the 17th-century apologists," Sir Cyril pointed out, and later in his speech, after referring to the dangers, uncertainties, moral and social problems of our own times, he said that the task of the men of science was clear.

"It is to go ahead undeterred by any of the uncertainties. Faith in science is not incompatible with or exclusive of any other kind of faith. Indeed there would seem to be no inconsistency in believing that scientific knowledge is itself one of the great instruments of higher ends. However that may be, duty, expediency, and the zest of living unite their voices in calling for unremitting effort, not in the certainty but in the hope and faith that knowledge may advance, mastery over environment increase, drudgery be abolished, sickness healed, the people fed, and life made happier.

"The ancient choice between good and evil is in principle unchanged by the scale or fullness of existence."

"You're not fenced in . . . They're fenced out . . ."

Thinking Aloud

Gerald Waring

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IT is not easy to be objective, even if one's temperament permits it. If you go to the arena to support the Cougars this winter, for instance, you will find it hard to cheer the visiting teams.

This is entirely natural but it has its drawbacks. Familiarity is said to breed contempt but in fact it is apt to breed instead a partisan.

Sometimes the more you know about people and things the more you incline in their favor.

Bismarck had this in mind when he said that frequently the ambassadors he sent abroad to serve his government's interests would be found arguing the case for the foreign powers to their own government.

Proximity was persuasive. Another instance came to light in the publication of prewar British state documents; at one and the same time the British ambassador to Japan was backing the Japanese against China, while his counterpart in China was doing exactly the opposite.

This human trait is not confined to the realms of high diplomacy. It may infect anyone, even those in my profession. A prominent American correspondent in London was once fired because his dispatches were too sympathetic to Britain. And yet, he wrote ruefully, he had been sent over to present the British point of view.

Apparently his trouble was that he got it too well.

Ordinary folks find themselves in somewhat the same dilemma. One might even say that the person is blessed who has a one-track mind, for then he is untroubled by suspicion there can be another point of view to his own. And this saves him any mental worry.

Yet paradoxically, the middle-of-the-road individual, the person who can see both sides of a subject, is commonly regarded as the ideal personality—sane, well-balanced, rounded in judgment.

Compromise, when it is not rooted simply in appeasement, is supposed to be a virtue.

No doubt this is true but the result can be to find oneself in a dither of complexity. One could say of our own city fathers, on occasion, that they see too many sides of a problem to come to a positive decision.

The dictum of Churchill, not to look unduly for difficulties—for these will present themselves—is worth remembering.

Writers have to beware this tendency to look too far around a topic lest they be immobilized. One can be so frozen with ifs and buts as to be unable to lift a pen. Remember that when next you read a non-fiction book with which you disagree.

The author is making a case and he cannot afford to be too objective.

You might say, perhaps, reading letters to the editor, that debate is so constant—and sometimes acrimonious—there is no fear that indecisive fence-sitting is a common complaint. But this merely confirms how difficult it is to be objective.

A good thing too, I suppose, especially for persons who essay of a morning to intrude on cabbages and kings. Lack of familiarity enables one to venture where angels, being better informed, would not tread.

But looking ahead to a bumper season for the Cougars—in hope anyway—it would be a shame not to be biased in their behalf.

Reports from Ottawa

THE construction industry, especially the housing sector, is proving less responsive than formally to the on-again-off-again dictation of government economic planners.

One bit of evidence is the failure of non-residential construction to take up as much of the slack caused by the big cutback in housing as the government had hoped. The net result was reflected in the ominous midsummer increase in unemployment.

Further evidence is the poor response of builders to the government's offer of mortgage money for houses built this winter. Not more than 1,000 housing units have been added to the stockpile of winter work for the housing industry—a stockpile that may, by the year's end, be less than half as large as the end-of-1959 carry-over of unfinished houses.

Construction workers make up 40 per cent of workers subject to seasonal (mainly winter) layoff, so the implications for the coming months are clear.

Hitherto the efforts of the government to open or close the tap on housing activity have succeeded because these efforts were pretty well in phase with general economic conditions. It was easy to curtail or expand housing when there was strong buyer pressure for more housing, when money was scarce, and when interest rates were rising.

Now there is a substantial stock of unsold houses, indicating that in the cost range of these houses, or in the income brackets that can afford these houses, supply exceeds demand.

The conditions under which the government is making additional mortgage money available are intended to prevent an increase in the number of unsold houses. A builder cannot get CMHC funds to build a house until the house has been pre-sold, and the purchaser has assumed the mortgage. In addition, the purchaser's income may not exceed the $7,000-$7,600 bracket.

While these conditions bar speculative building with government funds, they cannot create effective demand where it does not exist. The purchaser's income limit was raised from $5,000-$5,600 to encourage demand, but this action has not tapped new demand in the quantity expected.

One reason may well be recession psychology: a fear that it might not be wise at this time to take the plunge into the debt represented by a mortgage.

Another reason is certainly the high 6 per cent interest rate on N.H.A. mortgages, and arguments why this rate should be reduced before too long. It's easier to borrow money than it was even nine months ago. The cost of money is no longer rising. Indeed, private mortgage interest rates have dropped so they are only 4 of 1 per cent higher than N.H.A. rates. The prudent buyer may be tempted to wait in hope of getting a mortgage at 6 per cent or less.

These facts are playing havoc with the government's plan to use housing as a prop under the economic sag. Moreover, to the extent that the municipal winter works incentive program merely spreads an eight-months' work project or set of projects over 12 months, it is only a palliative.

So the government is being forced to decisions involving more basic tinkering with the economy than is represented by turning on the housing tap or subsidizing municipal works. There are indications, including recent almost daily cabinet meetings, that important decisions are in the making.

That Old Army Look

By GREGORY CLARK

FOLLOWING a recent TV news broadcast that showed a group of Russian army officers observing some American air demonstrations, one of our gathering, an ex-soldier himself, commented on the unsoldierly appearance of the Russians.

"They look," he scoffed, "like members of a village band."

"They wear their caps," said another, "perched up on the top of their bullet heads, like supers hastily got together for a parade."

"They're pot-bellied," said another, "and they sit and stand as though stuffed. They certainly don't look like their opposite numbers in the British or United States Army. They have no style, no swank . . ."

And while they talked, I could not help but think of the first time I attended a press conference in Italy at which Montgomery sat surrounded by a group of his general staff officers, and what a shock it was. Monty looked like some kind of informal Scoutmaster. His right hand man was a short, stout, neckless general with close-cropped red hair, brass colored eyelashes and a rosy cupid face. His chief intelligence officer was an Oxford don, and looked it.

Come to think of it, soldierly-looking soldiers in wartime are usually back in charge of training camps or somewhere where they can't be much of a nuisance. Only rarely do you get a Guy Simonds who not only looks good but is.

A Girl's Best Friend

(From The Toronto Telegram)

TIME was when a diamond bracelet from Cartier's was the ultimate test of male devotion, and diamond diggers were at least as plentiful as gold diggers.

But recently the fair sex's faith in "rocks" has been somewhat shaken.

It was a trim young blonde from Los Angeles who dropped the first bombshell. Stocks, not diamonds, are a girl's best friend, she said. Diamonds, she argued, don't pay dividends; they're hard to sell and they cost upkeep.

Since then, a Toronto real estate man says that (guess!) real estate also has a special claim on a girl's friendship.

Of course, this is a materialistic age. Is it surprising that the hand which tomorrow will rock the cradle is meanwhile interested in signing stock certificates or clinching real estate deals?

For sheer glamor, diamonds still have it. Imagine a young beau of tomorrow, ready to pop the question, producing not a diamond engagement ring but a stock certificate from his pocket. "If you'll marry me," he says, "these 100 shares of Able Baker Company will be yours for life." And his girl will answer, "Yes; but what's the dividend?"

End of romance.

Keyhole Confidences

The Butler's Revenge

By CASSANDRA, from London

NOT since Buckingham Palace was plagued by the interminable revelations of microscopic trivia laboriously collected and hoarded over 17 years by the ineffable governess "Crawfie," has there come such a concoction of impudence, insolence and crawling condescension as has just been published by Thomas Albert Cronin.

Cronin, until recently, was the butler to Princess Margaret and Mr. Armstrong-Jones.

He was with them three weeks before the parting.

Now the butler's revenge is being hawked in "The People" in a concoction of humbug, snobbery, pomposity and keyhole confidences that set up something of a new record in snide reminiscence.

Cronin begins by belittling from the houseposts that he must steel himself "to break the silence habitual to men of my calling" if the "dignity of the Royal Family is to be preserved."

This defender of human dignity, this knight of the scullery, then attacks Princess Margaret's husband by sympathetically saying that perhaps his "sudden elevation in royal tradition may have had something to do with the lack of smoothness in our relations."

From this servants' hall sniff, this travesty of the genial Jeeves goes on to say of his first encounter with Mr. Armstrong-Jones:

"I was taken aback by Mr. Jones' manner of dress . . . His coat, if memory serves me, was of leather, and unbuttoned; his trousers much too tight, and of an eccentric material."

According to Cronin, a further altercation took place with his new master. Mr. Armstrong-Jones protested about a charwoman's pay item, saying that when he was in digs in Liverpool things were different.

To which the preposterous Mr. Cronin replied: "I venture to say, sir, that a royal residence is somewhat different from 'digs' in Liverpool."

Cronin jubilantly recounts how he disallowed a detective to press his pants in a passage near the pantry with the classic, idiotic cry of what would happen if everybody pressed their pants near the pantry and how he summarily forbade Mrs. Gordon, the Princess's dresser, to use the front door: "I told her," said this swollen mandarin of backstairs protocol, "that while I was butler no servant would use the front door."

Maybe he unwittingly spoke the truth for Cronin has shown himself to be a real back-door man. He has used it as an exit through which to peddle grimy gossip and to sell it at the expense of those whom he would no doubt call his "betters."

I think that the British public grossly exaggerates its adulatory attitude towards the Royal Family and uses it as a substitute for religion. The Crown has been brought too close to Walt Disneyland.

But he is as it may, the monarchy does not deserve the likes of Cronin, his miserable etiquette, his tawdry patronage and his backbiting desire to make money at the expense of his late employers.

Especially when he is far away from criticism in his new job of "butler in a fashionable club in Florida."

The Old Art

IF the world can still tremble, if it can still wilt and if it has a shudder left in its quivering frame, now is the time to tremble, to wilt and to shudder.

The old art of diplomacy has vanished.

Bellowing, bawling and hate-enraged abuse have taken its place.

Were Talleyrand, Metternich or Disraeli alive this day they would be appalled by what has happened to the civilized intercourse of nations.

The quizzical smile, the shrugged shoulders, the delicate hidden deal and the intricate machinery of the Congress of Vienna have given place to the verbiage of Billingsgate.

The minuet has given place to the curse; the bow from the hips to the kick in the teeth.

Khrushchev, Castro, Kadar and Nasser are detested in the United States as Hitler was here.

To greet them in New York were mobs bearing slogans, among the mildest of which was "Khrushchev—grave-digger of the world."

That this vilification would be answered by an even greater hurricane of abuse by K and Co. was certain.

I was reminded of this all-time lowest common denominator of the exchange of human deas when I walked past the BBC that same day in Portland Place.

Above the main entrance there are these words: "Nation Shall Speak Peace Unto Nation."

Capital Punishment

The United Church in convention suggests that condemned murderers be given life imprisonment, 10 years at most, in place of capital punishment. What are they prepared to contribute to the maintenance of these homes, for each province will need several of them? Since capital punishment is no deterrent, certainly 10 years in sheltered comfort is not the answer.

It is women and children, who mainly make up the lists of unfortunate victims. Strangely the convention had no sympathy for them, or the hundreds of bereaved parents, relatives and friends. Let us suppose that a half dozen clergy or laymen were among the usual annual list of innocent victims: would they still be so merciful?

Remember, it isn't possible to turn the other cheek; but it has often been said that it is easy for a murderer to repeat when given his freedom.

No, the church is wrong in opposing the state in its duty to impose the law, and I challenge the church to obtain confirmation of this stand within its congregations across the Dominion after a free discussion of the facts by that congregation.

Mr. Huck Repudiated

The resignation of L. Huck as president of the Victoria local of the Government Employees' Association is not, as your editorial suggests, a sign of "serious internal trouble" in the branch. It is merely a sign that in his very short term of office Mr. Huck has been repudiated by the branch membership.

Here are two facts which Mr. Huck, in his anxiety to tell all, no doubt overlooked.

Last December when Mr. Huck was running for president he spoke at a dinner attended by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant, a minister well known for his anti-labor speeches in the legislature. Mr. Huck indicated, as he had done before, that he intended to hold a referendum in the branch in an effort to induce the branch to withdraw from the labor movement. At a branch meeting in February the membership democratically voted and defeated his plans.

In June at a branch meeting Mr. Huck was again repudiated by the membership when they passed a resolution advocating "that we continue our policy of co-operation with recognized labor organizations such as the Canadian Labor Congress and the B.C. Federation of Labor, and that we encourage the branches to join the labor councils in their areas."

I will defend all the way Mr. Huck's right to disagree with the branch membership on its policy, but first let us put his resignation into proper perspective.

World Federation

Dr. Brock Chisholm was apparently sincere in his desire to see war abolished at the meeting of World Federalists on Saturday night. His admission that world federation would only supply the machinery for peace but wouldn't guarantee a warless world, because this would depend upon people themselves, is reminiscent of another theory.

The other theory is that people could be good if they only tried harder, or if enough agencies told them to try harder. The machinery for goodness exists, but it's the people who are at fault. One wonders just how much urging the people need when most mass mediums of public information are already used largely for this purpose.

Even Chewing Cancer Cause

OTTAWA (CP) — Cud-chewing cows have nothing on people.

People chew their lips, cheeks and tongues, fill their lungs with cancerous tobacco and burn their mouths with tooth-ache killers.

Dr. Donald Kerr, head of the department of oral pathology and periodontia at the University of Michigan school of dentistry, Monday ran through the many ways that people can damage their mouths.

He told 900 dentist-delegates at the Canadian Dental Association convention they must learn to diagnose these habits properly.

"A large number of people have a tendency to chew their cheeks," said Dr. Kerr. Chewing "while asleep or awake" they damage tissue. "The result can be cancer."

He warned that a wrong diagnosis "can result in mal-treatment and gross injustice to the patient."

Allergies to toothache pills and ointment made lips swell and burned mouths, some so badly that the skin peeled off "like peeling skin off a sun-burn."

Palates were burned and damaged by chronic smokers of pipes, cigars and cigarettes.

Some were so bad the roofs of their mouths "looked like strawberries."

"Only treatment is elimination of the habit, but some won't accept this."

ness" and expressed his country's "renewed confidence" in the secretary-general.

The battle on the assembly floor was accompanied by even more intense diplomatic activity behind the scenes. President Eisenhower was in New York to test the reactions of neutralist leaders. Diefenbaker met President Nasser of the United Arab Republic Monday and a meeting also was scheduled with Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah. He also called on assembly president Frederick Boland of Ireland and met Hammarskjöld.

The Canadian leader said Eisenhower had opened the door to East-West conciliation in his speech last Thursday, but "Mr. Khrushchev tried to shut that door."

Rejecting the attacks against Hammarskjöld, he spoke of him as a "wholly dedicated and impartial" official.

"The proposal of the Soviet government to replace the secretary-general with a chairman presiding over a unanimous agreement to act is a transparent plan to undermine the prestige and authority of the United Nations."

DESTROYING UN
"Having thwarted the United Nations so often in the Security Council through the exercise of the veto, the Soviet Union now seems bent on destroying the United Nations by neutralizing its power to proceed effectively and promptly in emergencies as they arise."

"I need not add that Canada is opposed to this bizarre proposal. To accept it would reduce the UN to indecision and impotence."

TOOK NOTE
Diefenbaker took note that UN membership now has increased to 86 members, including 13 new African countries, and suggested that the numerical strength of the 11-member Security Council and the economic and Social Council be increased to provide adequate geographical representation.

The Congo crisis had been one of the greatest challenges in UN history and Canada had played its part by providing specially qualified personnel at the request of the world body.

AGGRESSIVE?
Scornfully referring to a charge by Khrushchev, Diefenbaker asked did the fact Canada was a NATO member "indicate that providing such assistance is aggressive?"

He was also scornful of Khrushchev's statements on colonialism, saying the references to colonial bondage and exploitation were made by "the master of the major colonial power in the world today."

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow Radio Monday night accused Prime Minister Diefenbaker of making "several malicious and slanderous remarks" about Russia and "its peace-loving policy" in his address before the United Nations' General Assembly.

national affairs and he challenged Khrushchev "to give those nations under his domination the right of free elections—to give them the opportunity to determine the kind of governments they want."

Turning to disarmament, Diefenbaker said that "without a return to negotiation, we cannot hope to arrest the arms race or to begin the process of disarmament."

NOTHING WRONG
Despite the Communist withdrawal there was nothing fundamentally wrong with the 10-nation forum used at Geneva and working methods could be adjusted, Canada had already suggested appointing a neutral chairman. What was lacking was not appropriate machinery but "mutual confidence and genuine will on the part of the Soviet side to negotiate."

Diefenbaker repeated earlier offers to throw open to international inspection any part of the Canadian Arctic territory in exchange for comparable Soviet concessions.

"Why has the leader of the Soviet Union... ignored this offer?" he asked.

EQUAL RIGHTS
On outer space, Diefenbaker said there is a pressing need for all nations, great or small, to have equal rights in such exploration. He outlined seven principles, including one that no celestial body should be considered capable of appropriation by any state and another that space vehicles should be identified by a system of registering launchings.

On aid to underdeveloped countries, Diefenbaker reported that Canada planned not only to maintain its contri-

Giant Base Menaced By Castro

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Cuban Premier Castro said last night Cuba is "seriously considering" demanding the withdrawal of the U.S. from its $70,000,000 naval base at Guantanamo Bay.

He accused the U.S. of maintaining the base for aggressive purposes "and to justify an attack on our country."

In a bitter attack on U.S. dealings with Cuba from the 19th century to date, Castro brought before the UN General Assembly every charge he has ever voiced in his many anti-American harangues.

He accused Sen. Styles Bridges of the Senate armed forces committee of threatening Cuba with atomic weapons.

He blamed the U.S. for the deaths of "scores of Cubans" killed in raids on sugar fields by planes and the mysterious explosion of a French munitions ship in Havana harbor.

And he ridiculed President Eisenhower's $500,000,000 aid plan for Latin-American development.

Castro drew applause on several occasions for attacking "colonialism" as he set a UN record for verbosity—speaking longer than Nikita Khrushchev who addressed the Assembly for 139 minutes last Friday.

Castro brought up the U.S. presidential election and was called to order for his breach of diplomatic conduct by Assembly President Frederick Boland.

A neutral nation spokesman, who asked not to be otherwise identified, said Castro "lost his audience at the outset" of his assembly speech.

First reaction of the U.S. delegation came from Francis Wilcox, assistant secretary of state for international organization affairs, who said: "He seems to be using the same old material."

Another neutral source noted that many of the delegates did not seem to be taking Castro seriously. They walked in and out of the assembly as he spoke.

Castro said his government was opposed by Washington because it fought "the U.S. monopolies sucking the blood of Cuba."

Age Sits Lightly On 94-Year-Old

Eric C. Jamieson, 1724 Cook, is a man whose age is mainly of academic interest to him. He'll be 94 Wednesday but there's little evidence of that fact.

Born in Inverness, Scotland, he has lived in Victoria only about 15 years during which, despite his age, he worked some time for both Yarrow's and VMD as machinist, pipe-fitter and shipwright.

If he hadn't pulled the ligaments in both legs a few years ago, he'd probably still be hard at work.

Mr. Jamieson came to Canada in 1906, following his first wife to Paris, Ont., where she had been engaged as a cook.

For some years he was a pattern-maker with International Harvester in Hamilton, and during the First World War was depot regimental sergeant-major with the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders in that city.

Moving to Ottawa he entered the taxicab business in which he remained for many years. For 25 years, he recalls, he took Sir Robert and Lady Borden wherever they went in the capital.

When he decided to come west, he and his wife drove all the way in a venerable Hupmobile that already had 200,000 miles on its speedometer.

His first wife died about nine years ago, and two years later Mr. Jamieson remarried.

He has two sons, Roy Ian in Toronto, Gordon, who retired as chief petty officer in the Royal Canadian Navy, and one daughter, Mrs. Florence Freeman.

Club Scores Strike

Ferguson New Coach

Arnie Ferguson, who coached and played with Victoria Shamrocks from their beginning to their first Mann Cup lacrosse championship, has returned to coach them again as the club begins a major rebuilding program.

"It's going to be like starting all over again," Ferguson said last night after his appointment was announced at a director's meeting. "We're going to have to rely on local boys and build, and as far as I'm concerned the more Victoria boys on the club the better."

Ferguson, rated by many as the greatest all-round lacrosse player of them all, coached and starred for the first Shamrock club in 1956. He handled the club until 1955, then retired on a winning note as the Irish won their first Mann Cup.

Backing up Ferguson as manager will be Whitley Severn, the all-time Inter-City Lacrosse League point champion who retired at the end of last season after nine seasons with the city club.

Dave Gray was elected club president at last night's meeting, succeeding Joe Mitchell. George McWilliam, a former director, was named vice-president and Ken Macdonald was returned as secretary.

Four new directors — Tom Baird, Tom Dare, Russ Morgan and Bert Richman — were named to the 10-man board. They join holdovers Austin Gower, Hec McNeill, Frank Pomeroy, Walter Spersholt, Wil Wilson and Mitchell.

Ferguson, obviously pleased at being back in lacrosse, said that while the club will be mostly home-grown, one or two players could be brought in to strengthen the youngsters if they can be found.

Riders Go With Throttle Open To Outpace Stampede, 45-35

REGINA—Hold everything, Saskatchewan Roughriders may yet make it a three-team fight for that third playoff spot in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Going for broke with an all-out offensive display, the Riders upset Calgary Stampede, 45-35, in a wild game played here Monday night before 10,000 fans who came in fear and stayed to cheer.

STILL A CHANCE

It was only the first win of the season for the Saskatchewan team, but it did keep alive its faint playoff hopes. Riders are three points behind the Stampede and four behind B.C. Lions, who must have loved the result, but Saskatchewan has two games in hand.

Bob Placock, a rookie quarterback from Michigan State University, and Bobby Renn, a sophomore halfback from Florida State, were the scoring stars for the suddenly-potent Riders but it was an ex-Californian, and Jack Gotta, who finally did the Stampede in.

WITH A FUMBLE

Gotta, whose sale to the Riders raised more than a few eyebrows, scooped up a fumble in the fourth quarter with Calgary leading, 34-31, and galloped 60 yards for the winning touchdown.

Before that it had been a see-saw affair with both clubs either unable or unwilling to play defensive football, scoring almost every time they got possession and gambling all the way.

Placock and Renn, both returning to action after injuries, were a potent combination. Renn caught three touchdowns, passes from Placock in the first half, during which he accepted seven passes all told for 155 yards.

Jack Hill also caught a touchdown pass from Placock and the latter completed a fine evening by scoring the clinching six points with a 15-yard dash when he couldn't find a receiver clear.

IT WASN'T EVIDENT

Shattered completely, for the time being at least, was the reputation for sturdy defence which new-coach Steve Owen brought with him to Calgary.

Placock completed 15 of 20 passes for 310 yards and the Riders, who had scored only 81 points in their first eight games, picked up 207 yards rushing.

Saskatchewan was almost as important defensively as the Stampede, yielding 30 first downs, 307 yards rushing and 272 in the air, where Joe Kapp and Gene Cichowsky were successful on 17 of 29 throws.

Riders opened the scoring with a field goal by Reg Whitehouse, the Stampede replied immediately with two converted touchdowns for a 14-3 lead. And that's the way it went from there.

After Renn's first touchdown had made it 10-14,

Penalty Calls Cost Vampires

Victoria Vampires had two touchdowns called back in the final quarter Sunday, and lost, 20-14, in their Vancouver Island Juvenile Canadian Football League game against Nanaimo.

Fred Holmes, who got two touchdowns for Vampires, recovered an onside kick and ran for a touchdown, but an over-anxious teammate was called for illegal blocking. Then Brian Zilkie took a pitchout to cross the goal line again, and Vampires had the play called back for illegal use of hands.

Dan Hess and Brian Rigby converted Holmes' touchdowns.

Calgary disdained a field-goal try with third and nine yards, made it with Don Stone going over.

Riders came right back with Renn's second score, stopped a Calgary march and, trailing by 17-21, threw a pass on another third and nine situation. Renn caught it, Whitehouse converted for the third time, Riders were in front, 24-21, at half time.

DIDN'T LAST

Defence took over for 10 minutes of the third quarter, and that was all. Stone rambed seven yards for his third touchdown, Doug Brown converted and it was Stampede, 28-24. Fifty-seven seconds later, Hill was over for his score, Whitehouse converted and it was Riders, 31-28.

Then the Riders goofed as Ron Morris was allowed to recover his own punt 26 yards out. A few plays later, Earl Lunsford bulled over, Brown converted and it was Stampede, 35-21.

Then came Gotta's run with Kapp's wild lateral, Placock's touchdown jaunt, a convert by Whitehouse and a single by Fred Burket.

Esks Snap Bombers' Streak To Clinch Spot in Playoffs

WINNIPEG — Edmonton Eskimos clinched a playoff berth in the Western Interprovincial Football Union here last night with a 15-2 victory.

Jackie Parker and Edmonton's defence spelled victory for Edmonton last night and put an end to Bombers' bid to equal the WIFU record of 12 straight victories. Parker threw touchdown passes to Cowboy Woodruff and Joe Bob Smith and kicked a field goal to have a hand in all his club's points.

Backed up by the fine line play of P-on Stephenson, Ed Gray, Mike Volcan and Roger Nelson, plus two key interceptions by Bill Smith, Esks held the high-scoring Bombers to two singles on punts by Charlie Shepard.

Bombers could come through with only one sustained march. In the third quarter, with the score 6-1, they rolled from their own 22-yard line to the Edmonton 10 on six straight first downs. But Smith snuffed out the drive with a leaping interception of a pass by Kenny Ploen.

Smith also set up the second Edmonton touchdown in the fourth quarter, taking Ploen's pass at the Winnipeg 25-yard line and running 20 yards. Parker then passed to Joe Bob Smith on the first play.

Parker, who passed five yards for Woodruff's touchdown, completed 12 of 19 for 146 yards, and the Esks marched for 190 yards on the ground. Bombers rushed for 115 yards and picked up 82 through the air as Ploen completed only five of 14 attempts.

Yankees' Latest Win No Push-Button Job

Make no mistake. Sunday, Sept. 25, 1960, brought Casey Stengel his finest hour.

It came when the New York Yankees clinched their 10th American League pennant in the 12 years of his management by winning their ninth consecutive game. No longer can they point to Ole Case as the fellow who will go into baseball history as one of the most successful masterminds of all time because he was lucky enough to get a job with the Yankees away back in 1949.

Stengel started the season with a club which had finished 15 games out of the lead in 1959. The Yankee dynasty, everyone was certain, had been toppled and there were many who believed that the club might have its troubles staying in the first division.

That it regained its position of eminence is something which the grizzled septuagenarian can savor for the rest of this life. This was one victory which no one can deny Stengel. His was an important contribution.

NEW WRECKING CREW

General manager George Weiss got him Roger Maris in one of the best trades the Yankees have ever made, and the club was again able to present a reasonable facsimile of the Murderers' Row which carried it to so many pennants — Hec Lopez, Maris, Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra and Bill Skowron.

They produced, hitting home runs at a pace which could set a new record and winning game after game with booming drives into the stands. But it was, actually, intermittent power and there was game after game when it didn't show.

ALL HAD TROUBLES

Mantle, playing every game with his right leg taped from ankle to thigh, was a spotty performer until late in the season. Maris was hurt just when he was on a streak which threatened Babe Ruth's home-run record. Skowron remained a streaky hitter, the aging Berra needed rest more often than usual and there was argument as to whether Lopez could drive in as many runs as his defensive play allowed the opposition.

Just the same, they produced often enough, with help from the consistent Tony Kubek and Cleve Boyer, a new star in the making, to overcome the problems set up by a club which bobbled for too often behind erratic pitching.

MORE TROUBLES

Whitely Ford and Bob Turley, the 1958 starting mainstays, couldn't go the distance and Ryne Duren, the flame-throwing relief ace, couldn't be counted on. Jim Coates won his first nine but when his teammates quit giving him a big lead, couldn't get anyone out. Rookie ace Bill Short hurt his elbow, fans wondered why Ralph Terry wasn't sent back to the minor leagues, and Eli Grba was a bust. Only Art Ditmar could be classed as dependable.

Casey juggled and juggled as he had always done, but this time he didn't have that devastating bench.

But he did what he could about that. Luis Arroyo, a chunky southpaw who hadn't been able to stick in the major leagues, mopped them up for Duren in the late innings. Bill Stafford came up from the farm system to contribute four important wins. Terry became a terror as a starter and Coates started getting them out in relief. And Dale Long, who had once aspired to be a left-handed catcher, came on late to provide pinch-hitting strength and substitute for Skowron against tough right-handed pitching.

LIKE A YO-YO

All of this kept the Yankees close, but they couldn't open up a lead. When Baltimore Orioles swept a three-game series, Sept. 2, 3 and 4, it marked the eighth time that the Yankees had been knocked out of the lead.

They bounced back by winning five of their next six and went to the front to stay on Sept. 10.

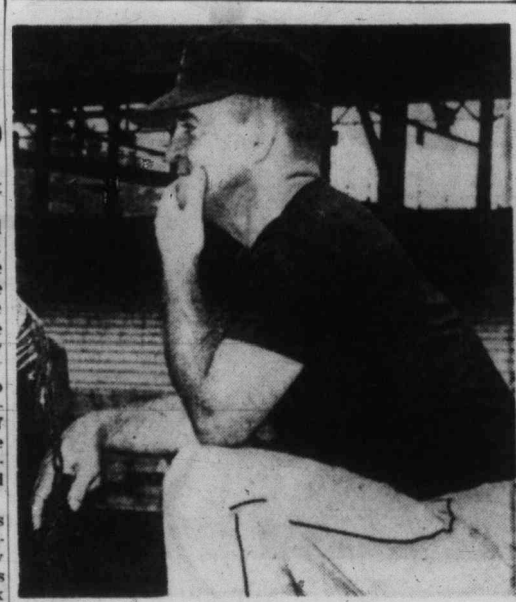

But an even darker moment was to come. Kansas City Athletics, quiet being palsies, swept a two-game series and left the Yankees only one percentage point ahead with a four-game series against Baltimore coming up.

THE DIFFERENCE

It was here that Casey put the icing on the cake. Every move he made was the right one as he outmaneuvered Baltimore's Paul Richards in a four-game sweep that decided it. He entrusted the all-important first game to Ford and won, used five pitchers at the right time to win the second game. He went for broke by using Ditmar to oppose Jack Fisher, the "hot" Baltimore youngster, and won the third game. Terry made it a sweep with a two-hitter, his third shutout in three weeks. The Yankees had swept.

They followed with two wins over Washington Senators, a club who held a 10-7 edge until then, clinched it the right way by sweeping a three-game set from Boston Red Sox.

Many of Stengel's moves were dictated by sheer necessity but no one can take away from him the fact that it was his leadership which struck the spark. He can call it a career now secure in the knowledge that he hasn't just been a push-button manager.

DANNY MURTAUGH
... quiet success

Bucs Bank on Balance To Tip Series Scales

Pittsburgh Pirates, who came home Sunday to an all-night victory celebration after clinching their first National League pennant in 33 years, are counting on team balance to counter the home-run punch of the New York Yankees in the world series, which opens a week from tomorrow in Pittsburgh.

No matter how it's analyzed, the Pittsburgh success story of 1960 must be interpreted as a solid team victory.

No one man can take a bulk of the credit, not even Dick Groat, shortstop and a leading candidate for player of the year in his league. Or 20-game winner Vern Law, relief ace

Even Hangovers Can't Stop Yanks

Even hangovers aren't stopping the New York Yankees these days.

Fresh (?) from their pennant-clinching celebration Sunday night, the Yankees rolled to their 10th straight victory ators, took a 6-1 thumping from Kansas City.

Milwaukee Braves and St. Louis Cardinals, who still have second place to decide in the National League were idle yesterday but San Francisco Giants continued a late drive for fourth place with a 6-2 win over Los Angeles.

It was the fifth straight for the Giants, pre-season pennant favorites.

STEADY MARCH

Throughout the season, the Pirates pattern was a reflection of Murtaugh's managing style. They drove to the front early, were headed once or twice, but regained the lead with consistently steady play. Only twice did they lose as many as four in a row and nine in a row — in April — was their longest win streak. They had seven, six and five-game streaks and three four-game streaks but mostly it was a case of winning two out of every three.

Well-spaced use of Law and Friend, both having good seasons, prevented any lengthy losing streak. And it will likely be the same in the world series, made to order for the Pirates with days off which will permit the two right-handers to start three games each if necessary.

So you takes your pick, convivial Casey with his power and know-how or deliberate Dan with his competent crew.

City Man Elected BCAHA President

PENTICTON—Ivan Temple of Victoria, Sunday was elected president of the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association, replacing Leo Atwell of Vancouver.

Jim Anderson of Trail was named secretary-treasurer while Bill McCulloch of Penticton and Charles McLean of Trail were elected vice-presidents at the annual meeting here.

Returned unanimously as honorary president was Fred (Cyclone) Taylor of Vancouver, member of hockey's Hall of Fame.

The amateur hockey representatives pumped for commercial Sunday hockey and elimination of a five per cent amusement tax from all amateur sport in the province.

Delegates to the annual convention at the weekend voted to approach the provincial government for legislation to permit an admission charge for Sunday games. They also moved to have the association make an all-out effort to remove the amusement tax, not only from hockey but also from other amateur sports.

Both moves are aimed at helping the sagging receipts of senior hockey clubs in B.C. In the minor division, they added bantams to those already competing in provincial playoffs and set up funds to handle the new playoff.

In allocating funds, one of the biggest new expenditures was the granting of more than $800 toward setting up a provincial junior "A" playoff which would establish the team to represent B.C. in Memorial Cup play-offs.

The decision to enter Memorial Cup competition is subject to approval of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association but not real difficulty was foreseen on that score.

Champs Lose In Season's Soccer Start

Victoria Kickers upset defending champion Brodie's Bakery, 3-1, Sunday as the Victoria and District Soccer League opened its regular schedule with four matches.

Volker Stoldt scored twice and Willie Voigt once for Kickers, and Alan Glen tallied for the Bakery.

Veteran Tommy Druce fired two goals for Saanich Thistles in their 3-1 win over Heaney's, and Robin Barnes got the hat trick for Vic Wests in a 5-1 triumph over Esquimalt.

At Ladysmith, visiting Nanaimo was blanked, 4-0. Ladysmith goals came from Danny Carmichael, with two, Don Morelli and George Johnson.

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

This is the last week to fish for tye salmon this year ... and the chance of latching on to that big lunker is excellent at Port Alberni, where the 1960 season will close Sunday with the Alberni Tye Club fishoff for the 100 qualifying members and a banquet and annual meeting in the evening.

Up until Saturday morning club members this year had landed 14,500 pounds of tye salmon, up from the 14,169 landed during the whole season last year.

Club president Alex Underwood predicts a better than usual derby fishing, provided weather is favorable.

It was good on Saturday and Sunday with 20 big ones brought in Sunday, among the biggest a 45-pounder by David Hay, a 43-pounder by Keith Banfield, and a 40-pounder by Clarence Silvius.

On Sunday the fishing started out fine until noon, when, for the first time in several years, killer whales came right up to the head of Alberni Inlet and scattered the big springs.

Even at that 18 tye salmon were brought in and among the biggest were a 52.8-pounder by Ted Dolan, a 49-pounder by Gordon Robinson, a 43.8-pounder by D. C. Ferrier, a 43-pounder by Sam Herget and a 41-pounder by Don Matthews.

There is little doubt that federal fisheries officials will invoke a closure on Alberni Inlet fishing after Sunday's derby, as has been the practice in most other years.

Part of Nahmint Bay is already closed to anglers and all of Comox Bay is closed. There just aren't any more tye, unless it be an odd stray, in the tye pool at Campbell River.

Fisheries officials point out that the closure of the Sooke River tidal waters from the river mouth to Demaniel Creek applies to all varieties of fish, including cutthroat trout.

They point out that the Sooke run of springs and coho was never very big and they would like to build it up. This year, with coho scarce as hen's teeth, fisheries officials are more than ever vigilant in their efforts to protect spawning fish.

The Sooke River will be reopened in time for winter steelhead fishing.

Recent rains have provided enough water to move the first spring salmon out of the pools and into the spawning grounds of the San Juan and some other island rivers.

It is permissible to fish for the salmon as they run up the river, with a catch limit of two a day, but fisheries officials are busy to point out that should this become a popular sport to the point where escapement is threatened, fishing in the rivers would be prohibited as it has been in the Bella Coola and other areas where fishing pressure resulted in too big a take of black spawning fish.

On Vancouver Island, the Puntledge River, from the B.C. Hydro plant upstream to the diversion dam, is off limits for salmon fishing from June 15 to Sept. 30, and of course part of the Sooke River is now off limits.

Elsewhere there is not a great deal of fishing for salmon in the rivers, but some are caught in the Cowichan, Nanaimo, Soomass and Stamp Rivers.

Vancouver 3, Surrey 0

Sunday's score: Victoria Drakes 13, Surrey Rams 0.

Not game Sunday, Drakes vs. Grizzlies at Vancouver.

Charlie Bishop and Ken Higgs, all-star fullbacks in the Pacific Coast Canadian Football Conference last season, are still carrying a big part of the load for Victoria Drakes.

Higgs kicked two field goals in the third quarter and converted Bishop's fourth-quarter touchdown Sunday as Drakes blanked Surrey Rams, 13-0, at Surrey, Victoria, their second blanking of the Rams, left Drakes in second place, two points behind Vancouver Grizzlies.

Drakes play the unbeaten Grizzlies next Sunday in Vancouver.

Drakes got another outstanding effort from their defensive unit Sunday, and Rams couldn't cash in on two good scoring chances in the first half. Meanwhile Bishop was rushing for 82 yards and Higgs for 69 to lead the Victoria offence.

Next home game for Drakes will be Oct. 8, when they play an exhibition against Seattle Cavaliers.

Williams to Retire at Season's End

Tom Yawkey, owner of Boston Red Sox, said in a prepared statement Sunday that Ted Williams definitely will retire at the end of this season.

The 42-year-old hitting great has maintained all season that he would call it quits, but speculation continued that he may return.

But Sunday's statement said Williams "definitely will retire as an active player at the end of this season."

Yawkey said Williams will go to spring training with the Red Sox as a batting instructor under manager Mike Higgins next season, and when spring training is over "will assume other duties in keeping with his great talent."

There was no explanation as to what "other duties" might be.

Church 'Asset' Kills Pension for Builder

Turns Out To Be Liability

By CHARLES THOMPSON

DUNCAN — A retired businessman here claimed yesterday that he is being discriminated against by the government because he built a church.

George Turner laughed when he explained that an investigator for the department of veterans' affairs classed his non-completed church as an asset.

SPIRITUAL VALUE

"The church has no commercial value, only a spiritual one," he explained during an angry denunciation of the government branch.

The church was started with a legacy. "This enabled me to start a church which I considered my duty to God and man."

IN VAIN

But the actions of his fellow men in the government service almost made him take God's name in vain.

"Because I built the church, I have been denied the right to receive the burned-out pension to which I consider I am legally entitled," Mr. Turner maintains.

DON'T BEND

In 1946 he was discharged from the army with five smashed discs. He was warned "don't bend, don't jump and don't lift anything heavy" and given a $28.50-a-month pension.

"However, I built a general store, operated it for a while, later leased it and finally sold it." Now he's broke.

DENIED PENSION

"My financial condition was investigated by an official of the DVA at Victoria and finally denied the pension on the grounds that my assets exceeded that allowed by its act," he said. "However, I insisted, and still do, that a liability cannot be an asset."

"The taxes on it are $155 a year, which certainly makes it a liability. It does not and cannot produce any income. Therefore it is impossible for it to be an asset."

NOT COMPLETED

The church, beside his small Norcross Road home north of here, is still not completed inside and no services are held in it.

After a story in the Colonist that the church was for sale, a DVA official "flew" to Duncan and asked him to sign a form that if the church was sold the money would be used again to build a church.

NOT BEEN SOLD

Mr. Turner signed. The church has not been sold. And in the Colonist article he promised to build a church in another area if he could sell it so it would ultimately be completed.

"I took this matter up with the prime minister of Canada, and the minister of veterans' affairs, with the plea that they revise the decision made by the officials of the veterans' affairs in Victoria. This they refused to do."

SPECIFIC REASON

"The War Veterans' Allowance Act was brought into being for a specific reason, that of assisting older veterans financially. But, owing to the amendments, alibis and clauses inserted in it, its purpose has been modified to such a degree that its original purpose has been destroyed."

"I think this is rank injustice. More so owing to the fact that the church was not built by Canadian funds but by money received from England."

"The church is not completed yet, and anyone wishing to assist in its completion would be very much appreciated."

A lifelong ambition to build a church became a reality several years ago for George Turner, but since then it has become a white elephant that has drained his bank account and now stands in the way of his getting an increase in pension. — (Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

Praising both President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Mr. Bonner told a western Kiwanis convention:

"Conflict by miscalculation is out because our leaders have spoken up. In the 1930s we were less prone to speak up, and the events of the '40s marked the result of our lack of resolution."

"We can thank our national leaders for speaking up in unmistakable fashion—setting up the basic position of the West."

Of the U.S. and Canadian West, Mr. Bonner said resources-rich B.C. is a logical place for Americans to turn when U.S. resources are depleted.

"Elsewhere, forces tend to divide people. Those same forces on this continent are causing friendly nations to live more closely together."

Weather Satellite For All?

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. has invited Russia and 20 other nations, including Canada, to take part in a weather research program that will feature the launching of a new Tiro satellite equipped with a television camera.

The first Tiro, launched April 1, photographed the clouds over the earth. These photos were radioed to earth.

Tiros II, designed to do the same job, is to be launched between Oct. 1 and Dec. 31.

The 21 countries would have no connection with the actual planning or launching of the satellite. Instead, they would take cloud pictures from the ground or from airplanes and make other local weather observations to be correlated with Tiro's pictures.

England, West Germany and Japan were understood to be ready to take part.

Court Changes Hunter's Plea Then Dismisses Charge

DUNCAN—Magistrate A. C. Sutton changed a hunter's plea from guilty to not guilty in court yesterday then dismissed a case against him of having a deer that wasn't tagged.

Joseph A. Guilbot, Victoria, said he put a metal tag in the animal's ear but failed to pull one end of it back to make it lock.

Neither police nor the game warden, William Fowkes, could make the tag work in court. Mr. Fowkes said the tag was on the carcass but that when he touched it the tag fell open.

Court Startled

Inmate Murdered Prisoner Shouts

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 31-year-old convict shouted in Manitoba court of appeal Monday that a fellow prisoner killed during a riot at Stony Mountain Penitentiary last month was "murdered."

Lorne Peebles, serving a seven-year term for breaking, entering and theft, startled the court with his statement as he was being led out following dismissal of his appeal against a four-year concurrent sentence on similar charges.

The appeal was rejected by the court after crown counsel Gordon Pilkey said Peebles had not provided a transcript of evidence from the trial as required by law.

Peebles, handcuffed to a plainclothes RCMP officer, pressed forward and requested to be heard. When the court ignored him, he shouted that he had been unable to provide a transcript because of treatment he received following the riot Aug. 14.

EYE-WITNESS

"I was locked in solitary," he said. "I was blocked in every way, and not because I participated in the riot, but because I was an eye-witness to the shooting."

"I say Albert Mercier was not shot accidentally but was murdered, and I hold evidence to corroborate that, my lord," he shouted.

An inquest at the prison found that Mercier, 36, contributed to his own death by taking part in the riot and refusing to heed a warning from guards. Evidence was that he was among a group of convicts who tried to storm the main rotunda of the prison and was killed by a bullet fired by a guard, which ricocheted off a concrete floor and struck him in the head.

MOSTLY FALSE?

"I was not called as a witness at the inquest, even though I was an eyewitness," Peebles said. "The inquest was 80 per cent false."

At that point Mr. Pilkey objected that the prisoner's statements were irrelevant to the appeal court proceedings. Peebles was led out, still mumbling.

The court was comprised of Chief Justice J. E. Adamson, Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman, Mr. Justice Ivan Schultz and Mr. Justice C. C. Miller.

False Passport Admitted

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 25-year-old Chinese from Hong Kong admitted in British Columbia Supreme Court Monday that he lied and used a false passport to get into Canada.

The charges centre around passports obtained for Chow and his sister, Josephine, Chow turned himself over to RCMP after his arrival in Canada.

Thomas Chow gave evidence at the trial of three Vancouver men charged in connection with illegally obtaining Canadian passports.

documents were used to get the passports.

Chow testified that his parents came to Vancouver on a holiday and learned that "arrangements" could be made to get their children into Vancouver.

Chow heard of the negotiations between his father and a Chinese named Cheng, he said, and sent passport-size photos of himself and his sister to Cheng at the latter's request. He also supplied a dozen samples of his and his sister's signatures.

Chow testified he didn't

He wrote to his father in California to that effect and soon after received a telegram from Cheng ordering him to come.

It Pays to Take Pains

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

If you intend to plant some polyanthus primroses this fall, it is well worthwhile to take some pains in preparing their flowering site.

These lovely little plants actually need two homes—a sunny, open site for winter and spring and right through to the end of their flowering period, and a shady, slightly moist spot where they can spend the summer recharging their batteries for the following year. For both sites, I like to dig in quite a lot of well rotted manure—as much as two bucketsful per square yard—mixing it thoroughly with the natural soil, then rake in half a cupful of superphosphate per square yard.

The manure should be so well rotted as to be almost unrecognizable as such or, if this is not available, a good substitute is flaky leafmould with a little mild, slow-acting fertilizer mixed in. Bulb food or any fertilizer formulated for potatoes will work well, but anything of a forcing nature should be avoided.

Houseplants which have been plunged outdoors for the summer can come in now. Better clean up the pots before you bring them in, for this job can make an unholly mess if attempted indoors. Use a bucket of warm soapy water and a stiff brush to remove all soil and grime from the outsides and bottoms of the pots, then scrape away the top layer of soil in the pots, being careful not to injure any roots, and replace it with manure-enriched, sifted soil.

Earthworms are often a problem in potted houseplants and they will sometimes make their entry by way of the drainage hole in spite of any precautions we may take, disclosing their presence later by wormcasts on the surface. Worms don't damage the plant roots directly, but their sticky, pasty wormcasts can interfere with the drainage, and the worms are best evicted.

About the easiest way to do this is to set the pot in a pan of water as hot as the hands can bear. This much heat won't hurt the plant but will scare the living daylight out of the worm, which will come wriggling to the surface in a hurry. Pick him up and toss him out for the birds.

If the condition of the skin on the maincrop potatoes shows they are mature, there isn't much point in leaving them in the ground any longer. Fall rains could start the tubers into second growth, ruining their storage quality, and there is always the danger of fall damage from slugs and wireworms. The test for maturity is simply to rub the skin with the thumb; if it rubs off easily, the potatoes are still too "new" to store well.

Potatoes for storing should be handled with the same respect you would accord apples or pears, for bruises or fork wounds could set up rot diseases which might infect the whole store. Push the fork well under the plant and lever up slowly to expose some of the tubers—the remainder can then be combed out carefully with the tines of the fork. Make sure you get them all, for "volunteer" plants from tubers left in the soil are a very common source of disease.

Too Tough for Shocks

"Distinctive mark of the new series will be shocking climaxes. Tonight's will dazzle you." I'm reading here from an advertisement to a new series called Checkmate. The shocking climax—I don't think I'm revealing anything here since the show is now well past us—revolved around a horse stamping a woman to death.

I'm afraid it didn't carry much shock. Either I'm getting callous or it wasn't very well done. I rather suspect the latter. Shock is very large this year and, of course, with everyone getting into the act, it's getting increasingly harder to shock anyone. The idea will not be simply to kill people but to do it in some odd and interesting way. But with everybody getting into the act, we're going to be a tough audience.

Checkmate is a fundamentally ridiculous idea to start out with. Checkmate, Inc., is an organization dedicated to preventing murder and suicide or other forms of homicide and is composed of three men of entirely different physiognomies, backgrounds, temperaments and even ages. The idea is for each to appeal to a different segment of the television audience—your 13-year-old daughter, your maiden aunt and maybe you. Head of Checkmate is Don Corey, played by Anthony George, who is the Bill Holden-type character aimed at titillating the middle-aged woman (anyone over 25). He's assisted by Jed Sills (Doug McClure), a bearded boy, a sort of blond Kookie who's there to mollify the teen-age crowd. Then there's Dr. Carl Hyatt (Sebastian Cabot), a bearded character, who'll slay your maiden aunt.

The trouble with this sort of slide-rule drama—or maybe cookbook drama, a pinch of this, a pinch of that, is more apt—is that it's hard to believe these three actors ever met before unless they have the same agent. It just isn't plausible. I just don't think there is such an outfit as Checkmate, Inc., designed to avert homicides. Why would they want to do that? It would put television out of business.

The first episode opened with a long shot of a horse and a woman galloping over the countryside and then coming right at the camera. In other words, the direction was awfully noticeable. The actors would rise from their chairs, cross the room, turn around and then deliver the line—awfully mannered. I'm not ordinarily bothered by little things but this show has many things the matter with it. The interiors just seemed wrong for the kind of house being shown. The plot telegraphed itself well ahead of the way the authors planned it.

The trouble is that this sort of third-rate thriller shot for television really isn't good third-rate stuff. One thing you can say about the movie business is that it knew how to do the third-rate very well. Television actually does first-rate dramatic material better than it does the third-rate. Honesty is its strong suit. It just isn't slick enough for commercial thrillers.

Nevertheless, everyone's trying. NBC has its entry in this sweepstakes called Moment of Fear, which is supposed to scare the bejabbers out of us. The only one I saw was a dramatization of the capture of a man resembling Eichmann. It was awfully attenuated and badly organized. The denouement telegraphed itself way in advance and that is fatal to suspense.

Hollywood Today By Sheilah Graham

'Nothing Will Separate Us'

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Eddie Fisher, in London, discussing his marriage to Elizabeth Taylor: "Nothing will ever separate us." Not even his career, said Eddie. Shouldn't it be the other way around?

What ever will happen to the house of Dior, now that its chief designer, Yves St. Laurent, has to serve two and a half years in the French army?

I enjoyed Brendan Behan's play, "The Hostage," on a jet flight to New York, and would have enjoyed it more if it hadn't had so many dirty words and jokes. Apart from that, it had refreshingly different performances, especially from young Alfred Lynch. Hollywood will be calling him, I'm sure.

Keefe Brasselle, who played Eddie Cantor in the film on Eddie's life, is now writing his own autobiography—"and if they make a movie of it," says Keefe, "I want Eddie Cantor to play me."

Greer Garson, the gracious Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt of "Sunrise at Campobello," has been asked to co-star with Rex Harrison on Broadway in the musical version of "Tovarich." I talked with Greer at her ranch in New Mexico, and she is interested, "if I don't have to sign for the run of the play." I believe Greer would sign for six months. She has a happy marriage with Buddy Fogelson—in Dallas, New Mexico, Bel Air and New York City.

I received an interesting letter from Diane Varsi, who is living with her grandfather in San Mateo—and she "was painting the walls in the apartment." Also, the unexpected news that Diane is opening a dramatic school. One thing is sure: she has no plans to return to Hollywood.

Jackie Gleason is thinking of doing a TV special based on the life of Jim Fisk. Fisk, a plump man of hearty appetite, a business tycoon, who built the Grand Opera House in New York for the actress he loved, Josie Mansfield, was killed by a rival for her affections, as the saying goes.

Sidney Poitier and Dan Petrie—he directed Sidney in "A Raisin in the Sun"—are negotiating for the movie rights to "Dark of the Moon," a Broadway hit a few years ago. If all goes well, they will film it in the Caribbean next January—starring Sidney, of course.

Stiffer 'Silly Season' Hunting Rules Urged

A plea for more rigid control of hunting licences has been made by T. I. Hughes, executive secretary, SPCA, at the opening of what he refers to as the "silly season."

"Already," he says, "we have had a report of a man being killed in mistake for a bear; of a young boy shot in the leg by his companion; of a bullet smashing through the rear window of a magistrate's car—and this before the season has begun on the coast."

On the other side of the picture, says Mr. Hughes, are the animals and birds to whom unnecessary suffering is caused "by these same irresponsible hunters."

As examples he cited a deer shot 27 times before it finally died, and a bear shot with a target arrow which was finally tracked down and put out of its misery hours later.

"All responsible people," Mr.

Hughes went on, "including magistrates, police officers, game department officials, fish and gun club officers, are fully aware of this problem."

"I realize, of course, that as long as there is shooting there will be accidents, but surely steps can be taken to reduce their number and make it more difficult for some of the more irresponsible people to obtain shooting licences."

"Surely a test could easily be instituted which could determine whether the person concerned was at least competent to handle a gun safely, and possessed adequate eyesight."

"The mechanics of such a test could easily be handled by the fish and game clubs, with funds made available by the department of recreation and conservation."

"At present, there is nothing to stop a man incapable of seeing more than a few feet, and without any knowledge of game, game laws or safety precautions, from obtaining a licence which may result in the death of some perfectly innocent person."

"We do not allow such incompetent people to drive motor vehicles. Why do we allow firearms to be used so recklessly?"

Big, Angry Cougar Will Soon Be Rug

It may have been a messy job last night for 23-year-old Ray Daggett, 263 Regina, but it was a pleasant one—skinning a large cougar which almost got him first.

Today he plans to have the hide—without the head or paws—tanned. He'll use it for a rug.

Hunting deer near Glintz Lake Sunday morning, Mr. Daggett jumped onto a log to see over some dense brush. At the other end of the log—about six feet away—was a snarling female cougar.

"I had a 44.40 pump Remington," Mr. Daggett said last night. "My first bullet just grazed her face and made her all the madder."

"She began clawing at me with one paw. I shot her again and it knocked her off the log. She began thrashing in the brush alongside me and I shot her again."

Registration Slow

Civic Voters' List Closes on Friday

Victoria civic voters list will close at 5 p.m. Friday and City Clerk M. F. Hunter said yesterday, "at the present rate of registration we're going to be short of a lot of names."

Of 1,900 forms sent to resident and tenant electors to confirm their continued eligibility, he said, 400 have not been returned.

And, he said, only 157 new tenant or resident electors had registered yesterday. Registration opened at the beginning of August.

But last year, he noted, there were 325 new registrations and "about half of them were in the last four days."

Property-owners need not register. Their names are automatically placed on the list.

Pedestrian Suffers Shock, Head Injuries

A 75-year-old pedestrian who suffered shock and under-terminated head injuries after being struck by a truck yesterday morning, was reported "resting comfortably" last night at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Florence Whitmore, a resident at the Empress Hotel, apparently was crossing Gordon at Broughton when she was in collision with a truck driven by Joseph D. Williams, 1025 Terrace, according to police reports.

'Back to School' Set for Tonight

Annual "back to school night" of S. J. Willis Junior High School PTA will be held in the school auditorium at 8 p.m. today. The evening will begin with a short business session after which parents will have an opportunity to meet the teachers and hear talks on the work done in the school.

But last year, he noted, there were 325 new registrations and "about half of them were in the last four days."

Property-owners need not register. Their names are automatically placed on the list.

Oak Bay High Students Face Parking Prohibition

Oak Bay High School students who have been parking on Cadboro Bay Road, near the school, will soon have to find other parking.

In response to complaints from residents, Oak Bay council is having special parking signs erected, prohibiting parking from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. and from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

One letter, read at last night's council meeting, claimed that students were using the street for parking and preventing residents from parking their own cars outside their homes.

Delivery vehicles are also being forced to double park, the letter complained, and residents are forced to clean up garbage—discarded lunch bags and sandwiches—tossed from the cars.

Reeve George Murdoch charged last week that Greater Victoria school board was "giving us a run-around" in refusing to provide parking for students on school property,

Would Have Been Illegal

Child Deal Quite Possible

If a Victoria couple had agreed to an offer of $17,500 for one of their children, a provincial welfare official said yesterday, the deal possibly—although illegally—could have gone through.

Bernhard Schiphorst, 119 South Turner, a delegate to a

Roman Catholic family life conference in Banff, said Saturday that he had twice been offered deals for adoption of one of his children.

First offer was from a Toronto subdivision owner who proposed giving him a furnished house for the baby, he said, and second from a real estate salesman in Victoria who offered $17,500 cash.

If Mr. and Mrs. Schiphorst had accepted and arranged a private adoption, the provincial official said, the sale of the child would have been a criminal offence. But on the other hand, evidence of the transaction, sufficient for prosecution, might never have come to light.

The Schiphorsts didn't consider the proposals.

Mr. Schiphorst said he refused to discuss the matter with the two men because "children belong to their parents."

Beaten Pair Examined

Ronald Gill and Jack Crabbe, both of 1739 Hollywood Crescent, were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for a checkup yesterday after they were beaten about their heads and arms yesterday afternoon by a man wielding a light-weight poker. Neither was seriously injured, said police.

A suspect was later taken to city police station for questioning.

Flower Baskets

City Told To Drop 'Business'

Parks committee will recommend that the city get out of the flower-basket "business."

Victoria has been in the "business" to the extent of supplying flower baskets and boxes at cost to city firms for their private beautification of their premises and the streets outside the regular flower-basket zones.

But while the city was the only available supplier when the practice was instituted, Parks Administrator W. H. Warren told the committee yesterday, several commercial sources are now ready to supply the baskets.

Besides, he said, the park nurseries haven't the capacity to continue to carry the load.

The committee also:

- Tabled for further study a proposal that additional roads in Beacon Hill Park should be closed to motor traffic on summer weekends.
- Asked Mr. Warren for a report after receiving a request from Stanley Davison, 827 Villance, for relocation of equipment in Quadra Heights playground. The equipment, Mr. Davison said, is concentrated close to his fence, and he complained of noise until 10 or 10:30 p.m. and debris coming "fast and furious" over the fence.
- Approved attendance of parks foremen at a training institute in Victoria from Oct. 12 to 15.
- Refused a request for permission to rent horses at Thetis Lake, for fear of deterioration of trails.
- Decided to look farther into an inquiry about the possibility of Ross Bay cemetery maintenance being let out to contract.

Reeve Threatens to Spearhead Move

Secession from District 63 Could Follow Bylaw's Defeat

By TERRY HAMMOND

Saanich Reeve George Chatterton last night threatened to spearhead a secession move from School District 63 if ratepayers fail to pass an $800,000 construction bylaw later this year.

If the bylaw fails it will be for the third time.

Reeve Chatterton said if ratepayers don't approve it this year he will take steps to transfer that part of Saanich municipality which lies inside School District 63 to the Greater Victoria School District which blankets the southern part of Saanich.

Mr. and Mrs. Ian Ross To Reside in Kelowna

A wedding of interest in Victoria took place recently in St. Edward's Anglican Church, Oliver, B.C., when Miss Deirdre Rita Lamb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Austin Lamb, Okanagan Falls, B.C., became the bride of Ian William Shaw Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ross, Cordova Bay, Victoria.

Rev. C. Hilary Butler, M.A., conducted the wedding ceremony, during which the church choir sang.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of white organza over satin and net with fitted bodice and wide, flowing skirt appliqued with sequins and lace. The neckline was Elizabethan, and sleeves ended in lily points.

Attendants wore short gowns of turquoise and apricot sheer over white patterned taffeta, and carried gladiolus in shallow baskets.

Maid-of-honor was Miss Linda Ross; matron-of-honor, Mrs. Jean Whysker; bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Briscall and Miss Christine Hunt.

Flower girl, Glenda Lamb, sister of the bride, wore a white lace over taffeta frock and carried apricot gladiolus in a small basket.

Best man was Mr. Nigel Lamb, brother of the bride, and ushers were Mr. Dennis Whysker, Mr. John Briscall, Mr. David Yarrow and Mr. Edward Hoffman.

A garden reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Leaving for a honeymoon at Lake Chelan and Spokane, the bride wore a dress of printed matte jersey in deep lilac with matching accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross will make their home at 2337 Abbotts Street in Kelowna.

WHAT'S COOKING

By LOUISE MOORE

It may be a trifle early to talk of Christmas gifts but time flies and there are still odds and ends of fruits and vegetables left on the vines for an assortment of zesty relishes and preserves.

These things make very welcome little gifts for friends and neighbors — done up in pretty glasses, quaint tumblers or small squat jars — doubly welcomed.

CANTALOUPE PICKLE

Select firm slightly over ripe melons. Peel, quarter and remove seeds. Cut into 1-inch cubes. Sprinkle with salt and let stand overnight. Drain well and measure. You should have 3 cups. Two cantaloupes should make that amount. Tie in a bag 1 tbs. crushed ginger root, 2 sticks cinnamon, 1 tsp. whole cloves. Add to melon in pot with 1 cup vinegar and 1 cup sugar. Bring to simmer and simmer 15 minutes. Remove spice bag and cook another 5 minutes. Pack in sterilized jars while hot.

DIABETIC OR SUGARLESS PICKLE

Scrub and wash thoroughly 6 quarts gherkins. Dry and put in sterilized crock. Add 1 gallon cider vinegar which should come up well over the pickles. Add 3 tbs. salt, 1 tsp. salicylic acid, 1 tsp. powdered saccharine, 6 drops oil of cloves, 6 drops oil of cinnamon. Stir gently to mix and let stand 3 weeks then seal in sterilized bottles.

PICKLED PEARS OR CRABAPPLES

Wash 8 pounds seckel pears leaving on the stems and scrape off blossom ends. Boil pears 10 minutes in water to cover, then pour off this water. Prick skins of pears.

Boil for 5 minutes: 1 quart vinegar, 1 pint water, 4 pounds sugar, and the following spices tied in a cheesecloth bag — 5 4-inch sticks of cinnamon, 2 tbs. whole cloves, and 2 tbs. whole allspice — use more spice if you like it really spicy but we find this just right.

Add the pears and boil for 10 minutes. Or until tender. Allow the fruit to stand overnight in the syrup. Drain, remove spice bag and pack pears in sterilized jars. Bring the syrup to a good rolling boil and pour over the fruit.

Seal at once and store in cool dry place. For crabapples — follow directions for doing the pears only omit cooking in the water and pricking skin of fruit.

Probably nothing on a shell-fish menu is more universally popular than battered-dipped, deep fat fried shrimp. For this dish you require large raw shrimp or prawns. Peel them, leaving on the tail section. Remove sand vein from each, wash, and dry thoroughly. Holding each shrimp by its tail, dip into a thin batter. Fry in deep hot, vegetable oil at 375 degrees F. until golden brown.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Readers: Do you remember the letter from the husband whose wife was opposed to adopting a child? He signed his letter "Still Hoping to Celebrate Dad's Day."

I invited adoptive parents to write and tell about their experiences. The mail has been so heavy the postman says his back thinks its Christmas.

Here are some excerpts from some of the most rewarding letters I've ever read. Thanks to all of you who wrote to show how blessed you are. Your adopted children are equally blessed.

West Orange, N.J.: I almost killed myself trying to have a child. After five miscarriages my doctor gave me orders never to try again. My husband was reluctant to adopt (for the usual reasons) but I finally talked him into it.

Now we have two of the dearest little girls in the world. My husband is so proud of his daughters no one is safe from his dozens of snapshots or his inextinguishable supply of their "cute sayings." My only regret is that we didn't adopt two more.

Toronto: I just slipped on a marble and lit on a pitcher's glove. The house is a mess and I'm so tired I could fall asleep standing up. We adopted three little ones when our own child died. We loved the wee angel who was born to us with all our hearts, but I give you my solemn word, we love these three just as much.

Louiseville: I am 11 years old and I am adopted. That man who wrote to you said his wife was afraid to adopt a child because something might be wrong with it. There is nothing wrong with me and I know several other kids who are adopted and there's nothing wrong with them either. Personally, I think there must be something wrong with her.

Sheboygan, Wisc.: It burns me up, as a mother of two adopted kids when I hear childless couples say they're afraid to take a chance on adopting because the children might be defective. If they had their own they'd take what they got, wouldn't they?

Grand Junction, Colo.: Our adopted boy looks like my husband and our adopted girl looks like me. God knows what he's doing. This must be more than mere coincidence.

Miami: Our adopted son is seven. He's a handsome youngster, in excellent health, and bright in school. Our own little girl is a cardiac cripple. Chances are slim this situation

MISS MARGARET HALLETT

Victoria Artist Breaks Into Commercial Field

One day this week, an attractive Victoria woman walked into a local store to look over their selection of Christmas cards.

She was Miss Margaret Hallett of 1008 Collinson Street.

While she was looking over the cards, a salesgirl picked out a box and said, "You should see these. Aren't they darling? And we are told someone in Victoria designed them."

Miss Hallett was more than pleased at this remark, for she is the "someone in Victoria" who designed them.

GAY, CHARMING

The cards, printed by a Toronto firm, Austin Marshall Ltd., come in a box of 12 for $1.50 and are beautifully done. Called "Woodland Friends" they depict a fanciful squirrel, tall trees and snow. Some scenes show the little animal with holly and mistletoe. They are very gay, very imaginative and altogether charming. Some how they look very Canadian and would be ideal for sending overseas, as they are a top quality card and the suggestion of Canada is most pleasingly done.

Another series bought by the Toronto firm, not yet in print, depicts black pekingese puppies. She is also working on further cards with a "crazy" mouse dressed in fed and white-striped underwear, a skunk series and a sparrow series.

This is Miss Hallett's first "break" into the greeting card business. Although art is a fulltime hobby with her, and an interest she remembers right back to school days, she is a very clever business woman and holds down a top executive job as branch accountant for Traders Finance Corporation.

Victoria-born and graduate of St. Ann's Academy she has had two jobs here, the first with the Fisherman's Co-operative, Kyuquot Trollers, and the past nine years with Traders.

IN ENGLAND

Margaret Hallett took her first formal art lessons when her parents took her to England when she was 16. There she studied fashion and portrait art for a year in Birmingham.

About 10 years ago she took a three-year commercial art course offered by Famous Artists of Westport, Connecticut. This course she cannot praise highly enough. "Directors of it are people like Norman Rockwell," she says.

"I'm still learning," she continued, "right now I'm taking a course in Oriental art, again by mail. The brushwork is entirely different, and quite fascinating."

The very feminine and attractive Miss Hallett, who does not look in the least like a business executive, is not a lover of modern art. Before breaking into card work, most of her soft and delicate watercolors were landscapes and floral scenes. Local artist she admires most is Fenwick Lansdowne.

Asked if she had any other hobbies, Miss Hallett laughed and said, "Yes, Paladins—there's my ideal man. And my two dogs, 'Jette' an English pug who sits up in a chair and takes an intelligent interest in TV, and Ming Po Yung, a white peke."

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By EDITH HENRY

Homework is the child's responsibility—it is his own work.

Where these ideas originated we have no means of knowing. What we do know is that by their misinterpretation they can do much harm.

Mrs. Brown thought she was in no way to interfere with Tommy's home assignments. She was a conscientious parent and tried to go strictly by what she believed the schools suggested.

But one day, Tommy was sick. His convalescence was slow so Mrs. Brown went across the fields to the little red schoolhouse to get his homework.

Asked to rest awhile, she went in. Then she knew—she knew at once—that Tommy didn't learn so quickly as some of these other children.

This little mother went home, and she and Tommy worked happily together. Tommy had the extra help a slow learner needed. At the end of the term his reward was a surprisingly good report.

Somewhere, buried in Mrs. Brown's mind, had been the idea that the education of the child is the parents' responsibility. She may not have been aware of this idea, but on it she had based her effort with Tommy.

She was right. The child's learning is the concern of his parents. The school is there to help.

Homework is a new venture for many boys and girls at this time of the year.

First of Four TV Debates

Kennedy-Nixon Clash Quiet

Verbal Thunderbolts Lacking

CHICAGO (AP)—The two U.S. presidential nominees, Republican Richard Nixon and Democrat John Kennedy, collided Monday night in a television-radio debate over the farm and school issues. They clashed, too, over moving America ahead and over their relative experience.

Kennedy's attack on the Eisenhower administration was bitter, especially over agriculture, but the two didn't hurt any real verbal thunderbolts back and forth.

Luck Deserted Him

Sweepstakes winner killed Saturday night when his sports car went over cliff near his home in Newport Beach, Calif., was George R. Vaughan, 24, an American who lived at Gordon Head while attending school here. U.S. tax collectors took half of his $56,000 second prize won in the 1952 Irish sweepstakes. Surviving is his widow, Barbara, daughter of Mrs. Ellison Queale, 4491 Shore Way.

U.K., Canada Talk Space

OTTAWA (CP)—Peter Thornycroft, United Kingdom aviation minister, conferred with Transport Minister Hees and Defence Minister Pearson, yesterday on tentative plans for Commonwealth co-operation in space research.

A British government spokesman said Mr. Thornycroft hoped to gain support for a program of co-ordinated civil research into space communications, using information gained in military development for peaceful applications.

Chisholm:

Loyalty To All Survival

Human life on this planet may not survive man's present capabilities for chemical and biological warfare, according to former head of the World Health Organization, Dr. Brock Chisholm.

Speaking at the inaugural meeting of a Victoria branch of the World Federalists of Canada, Dr. Chisholm said the human race must cast aside acute nationalism if it is to continue the process of evolution—to survive.

NEW WEAPONS

He said the control of warfare has been taken outside the sphere of militarists by development of chemical and biological weapons.

Such weapons can be introduced into a country by a handful of civilians without their presence being detected by security agencies.

Once loosed, the outspoken advocate of world federalism told some 80 people, such weapons cannot be deterred by counter-measures.

HUMAN RACE

"The survival group is no longer the family, the city, the township, the community or even the country, but the entire human race," he stated.

Nationalism has led us to believe "we are always the good people and those who do not agree with us are defined as the bad people."

"Acute nationalism is an acute danger," he warned. In place must come an "undivided loyalty to the human race."

Three more similar debates are planned.

At no time in the hour-long program did the issue of Kennedy's Roman Catholic religion enter into the discussions.

Kennedy said he isn't satisfied with the way things are going in the U.S. and it must get on the move once more.

Nixon challenged that, saying the U.S. is on the move and it racked up more progress in numerous fields in the Eisenhower administration than in the previous Democratic government of Harry Truman.

Nixon said he agreed completely with the spirit of Kennedy's position that the U.S. should move ahead. But he said moving ahead under Kennedy's program would cost $13,000,000,000 more than under the Nixon plan.

This was the way things went on a few specific points.

Economic race with Russia: Nixon said Russian production is only 44 per cent that of the United States; Kennedy retorted that this 44 per cent is "certainly causing us a lot of trouble—and I want to see it stays at 44 per cent."

Civil rights: Nixon didn't mention this. Kennedy said: "I am not satisfied until every American enjoys his full constitutional rights." He said a Negro baby—and Puerto Rican and Mexican babies in some cities—has about one-half the chance of a white baby of getting through school, about one-third the chance of becoming a professional man, about half the chance of owning a home, about four times as much chance of being out of work during some of his lifetime.

BACKACHE
May be Warning

Backache is often caused by lazy kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest or that tired-out and heavy-headed feeling may soon follow. That's the time to take Dadd's Kidney Pills. Dadd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Get Dadd's Kidney Pills now.

Nikita Aims Tough Talk Directly at China

By STEWART HENSLEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev's tough stand at the UN stems directly from his bitter struggle with Red China for control of world Communism.

That is the conclusion of senior U.S. authorities after watching Khrushchev in action for the past week.

Khrushchev is talking with the UN and on the streets of New York, but his words are addressed to the Communist parties of the world. He is under increasing pressure to demonstrate that the Chinese Communists are wrong when they charge him with having gone soft, with having lost his revolutionary fervor.

The split between Red China and Russia, according to information reaching the U.S., has grown steadily wider and reached the point where Khrushchev felt that strong action was necessary before the gathering of Communism's leaders in Moscow Nov. 7.

U.S. authorities believe the Congo and other issues here are secondary to Khrushchev's real purpose in turning the cold war on full blast again and attacking the very structure of the UN.

There is no doubt he will try to pick up any dividends along the way and he may have some success if Soviet-supported Patrice Lumumba emerges on top again in the Congo.

He also is expected to squeeze for all its worth the anti-colonial issue to pull into the Soviet camp any new African states he can.

These issues, however, are regarded as only minor when compared to the titanic struggle which Khrushchev is now waging against China's Mao Tse-tung.

Khrushchev's action in bringing leaders of all the East

European satellites was specifically designed, U.S. authorities feel, to show world Communism he is still its boss. His actions and words here were designed to show he is still tough.

The fact that Nehru, Tito and other neutralist leaders heeded Khrushchev's suggestion that they come, too, is being cited by Soviet aides as further evidence of his influence.

President Eisenhower's advisers, after coming to these conclusions, have strongly urged him not to see Khrushchev for any reason, since such a meeting would be ballyhooed around the Communist world as evidence of the Soviet leader's vast power.

Angry Reds Pound Desks

Dag Hammarskjold Defends Himself

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold Monday spurned Nikita Khrushchev's demand that he resign and reaffirmed impartial UN principles in a moving speech that drew a table-pounding outburst from the displeased Russian.

As Western and many neutral delegates erupted in thunderous applause for the UN chief, Khrushchev pounded a chorus of disapproval with his fists on the desk in front of him.

HAMMERING AWAY

As though surprised, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko stopped clapping to join in the pounding and soon the entire nine-member Russian delegation was hammering away in a rendition that lasted 25 seconds after the Western applause ceased.

Khrushchev said later he was registering his opposition to Hammarskjold and the secretary-general's policies in the Congo.

Hammarskjold got in the first word as the second week of this momentous 15th General Assembly began.

He asked for and received permission to speak as is his a UN chief's right. He introduced a report from Rajeshwar Dayal of India, his representative in the Congo, which warned that disease and decay were rampant in the country. Then Hammarskjold, as Khrushchev sat listening with his face screwed up in a half-frown, presented his defence of his actions in the Congo, which caused Soviet ire.

Neutrals Applaud Performance

BASIC PRINCIPLE

"Thus, if the office of the secretary-general becomes a stumbling block for anyone because the incumbent stands by the basic principle which must guide his whole activity, and if for that reason he comes under criticism, such criticism strikes at the very office and the concepts on which it is based."

"I would rather see that office break on strict adherence to the principle of independence, impartiality and objectivity than drift on a basis of compromise. That is the choice daily facing the secretary-general. It is also the choice now openly facing the general assembly."

Neutrals, including assembly president Frederick Boland of Ireland, hailed Hammarskjold's "reasoned" arguments.

When Khrushchev pounded the table he drew a startled look from India's Premier Nehru sitting several rows in front of him. Others also turned, startled at the unusual outburst.

British Prime Minister Macmillan took his seat during the morning session as did President Nasser of the United Arab Republic. They sat across an aisle from each other.

BEHIND SCENES

Jockeying went on behind scenes as the 21-member steering committee assembled. It planned to consider placing on the agenda the question of a seat for Red China in the UN.

It appeared the issue would go to the assembly floor for the first test of allegiance by the 13 new African members.

Khrushchev Sincere Says Briton

TORONTO (CP)—British industrialist Lord Chandos says he is convinced of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's sincerity at the United Nations.

"The travels of Mr. Khrushchev make things much different than they were in the Stalin regime," he said in an interview after arriving from New York.

Viscount Chandos was Oliver Lyttleton when he served as Britain's wartime production minister from 1942 to 1945.

Eisenhower Appeal

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower appealed Monday for "calm voices" to help check renewed attacks by Russia and her allies against UN leadership.

At the same time, Eisenhower strongly backed Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold against Soviet Premier Khrushchev's drive to fire him and revamp the international peace agency.

The president, topping off a busy day, sought support from India's Prime Minister Nehru

Capitalists' Help Sought by Nikita

By AP, UPI

NEW YORK — Nikita Khrushchev, lunching off 14-carat gold plates with a group of North American capitalists, said Monday Russia is willing to resume disarmament talks — as long as they deal with total disarmament, rather than just the control of weapons.

Khrushchev told a co-existence luncheon sponsored by Cleveland industrialist Cyrus Eaton, that complete disarmament without reservation was "one of the major goals of my life."

NEW SUGGESTION

Khrushchev suggested at the Biltmore Hotel affair that the world's businessmen, journalists and lawyers draw up disarmament agreements and submit them to their governments.

"I would be willing to participate if approached as premier to hear them out and also voice my opinion," he said.

NO CONVERSION

There was laughter when he told the guests he had no plans to convert Eaton to communism and Eaton never tried to make him a capitalist.

The premier was sneaked into the hotel through a side door while Eaton's private security men patrolled the hotel corridor. Russian and U.S. secret service agents peered from behind the potted ferns in the huge ballroom.

Eaton, in a speech, called for repeal of government restrictions on trade with the Soviet Union. He also said he "hoped and believed" the time is near when the United States, Canada and Russia "will declare for collaboration on a program dictated by common sense."

"Let us replace the arms race by a concerted effort to expand international trade in a peaceful world," he said.

A GROWING YOUNGSTER

and idb

Some youngsters grow so fast that they are always pushing out of their clothes and needing new ones. This was the sort of problem faced by the X-Y Company. Not only was the company's growth phenomenal but new developments in the character and manufacture of the product—foil and transparent paper—had extended its common use into foodstuffs, tobaccos and other perishables and even into the hardware and textile fields. The Canadian consumer was increasingly being offered the cleanliness and convenience of having more and more goods pre-wrapped.

The X-Y Company's growth demanded more machinery and space; the new diversity in wrappers demanded new equipment. The X-Y Company had been doing extremely well, but it had been growing out of its financial clothing. When it first approached Industrial Development Bank for financial assistance, it already owned a plant which was fully paid for. Annual sales were over the million dollar mark, and heading higher.

The growth in market demand was most encouraging but in the endeavour to keep up with it, the company had been unable to set aside funds for adequate expansion. Its assets were substantial but normal commercial financing was not available and the company was not in a position to issue further capital stock successfully. I.D.B. stepped in to provide the needed financing and the productivity of the new machinery quickly fulfilled the highest expectations.

But the youngster hadn't stopped growing, and the same situation arose a couple of years later. Again the company needed new machinery to increase production and again I.D.B. provided the term financing for this purpose. The mushrooming sales chart took another surge upward.

The X-Y Company has benefitted from having alert, courageous management and from having the right goods to sell at the right time and, when opportunity knocked, I.D.B. financing helped the company to open the door.

The I.D.B. was established in 1944 to assist industrial enterprises whose term financial needs cannot be met from normal sources. By extending financial assistance, I.D.B. endeavours to help an enterprise to take advantage of expansion possibilities and progress through its own efforts.

If you are in such a position, write for information and an explanatory booklet to your nearest I.D.B. office, or consult your auditor, lawyer or banker.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BANK

Regional Office: Vancouver: 1030 West Georgia Street

"I.D.B. can consider proposals for financial assistance in these activities: manufacturing, processing, assembling, installing, overhauling, reconditioning, altering, repairing, cleaning, packaging, transporting or warehousing of goods; logging, operating a mine or quarry, drilling construction, engineering, technical surveys or scientific research, generating or distributing electricity or operating a commercial air service, or the transportation of persons, or supplying premises, machinery or equipment under lease to any business mentioned above."

In Love or Not Ferdinand's Mum

VANCOUVER (CP)—Love or not, Ferdinand will have to keep his trap shut.

Ferdinand the alligator had his jaws closed with a muzzle recently after he began making rude noises at the other alligators in the Stanley Park Aquarium here, and even bit a turtle.

Curator Dr. Murray Newman said Monday he now believes Ferdinand was just a young bull alligator feeling his oats.

"He thinks it's springtime," said Dr. Newman. "He's just growing up and being aggressive with the other males."

Ferdinand's love affair came to light when Dr. Newman spotted Isabella, the only female in the pond, slither up and put her front leg on Ferdinand's shoulder.

"They were making small alligator noises. I don't understand the language but I think they like each other a lot."

In fact, the curator said, there may be a blessed event shortly.

Victory Elates Mayor

Vital Resolutions Go Through

Mayor Percy Scurrell was enthusiastic yesterday about results of the annual meeting of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Back in his office for the first time after the convention, he said the results "as far as we are concerned were very satisfactory because we got through the important resolutions we sponsored."

These included resolutions calling for allocation of a portion of income tax revenue to education and for settlement of disputes between municipalities and their policemen's and firemen's unions by arbitration boards instead of conciliation boards, in the role of arbitrators.

Both were passed in amended form but, the mayor said, the amendments did no harm.

Victoria's original arbitration resolution proposed appointment of arbitration boards consisting of or headed by judges, and perhaps several permanent boards with regional jurisdictions.

"It was scrapped in that form because we felt it would confuse the delegates," the mayor said. "So we passed a simple resolution calling for arbitration under the Arbitration Act."

"It was definitely a victory on our part because the place was swarming with policemen and firemen lobbying against it."

The Way of the Worry-Free

To a child, there's a wonderful freedom in a train—to move about, watch the enchanting scenery, discover the wonders of the water cooler, sample the fabulous wares of the candy man.

Ask the mother who rides with Canadian National Railways—why does she? Many will be her reasons —privacy, roominess, comfort, assurance. She will tell you that she leaves anxiety behind, that for her it is the way of the worry-free.

Even Dad gets a holiday—from long hours behind the wheel, the battle of the crowded road, the fatigue, the tension.

For each in his own way it is this feeling of freedom and assurance that is making so many of today's motorists say: "When it's over 100 miles, I take the train."

Story of Courage Told

Lifejackets Spelled Difference

Lifejackets may have spelled the difference between life and death for crew members of the hydrographic survey ship William J. Stewart, one of whose crewmen was lost and four marooned last week off the south tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

When the Stewart docked here yesterday morning she brought with her a story of courage, seamanship and determination.

Last Thursday, the Stewart anchored about two miles to leeward of the southernmost island of the Charlottes and one of her launches put off with dories in tow to carry out survey work.

The launches carry approved lifejackets for all aboard, but it was stated yesterday that their use at any time was determined by the senior in charge, by circumstances or even by the individual crewmen.

WATNE ABOARD

First dory, in charge of chief hydrographer Ralph Wills, set out for the island's shores with coxswain Olive Watne, 26, and Robert Lee, 18, of Ucluelet, aboard.

They were almost ashore when Mr. Wills noticed heavy seas building up and decided to head back for the launch.

Almost at once a huge wave came over the bow of the little dory and swamped it. Watne, who was not wearing a life-jacket but was known as a strong swimmer, vanished.

Mr. Wills was washed out to sea, picked up by the launch and returned to the Stewart, suffering from shock.

Lee, wearing a life jacket, kicked off his boots and clung to the overturned dory. Eventually he was washed up on a rocky islet.

Seeking to rescue Lee, a second dory put out bearing crewmen Robert Mellis, Harold Tomren and Maurice Johansen. It was washed ashore on the main island, only about 30 feet from Lee.

TOWARD SHORE

A second attempt was made by a third dory, under first mate Ernest Betteridge. He had an inflated rubber raft, carrying third officer Colin Angus, drifting in toward shore on the end of a line.

Again the seas triumphed, throwing Betteridge into the water. Hydrographer Benjamin Russell worked the launch around to pick up Betteridge, who suffered a severe knock on the forehead, and to pull Angus back to safety.

"When I got back to the ship," Betteridge said, "I told the captain (Capt. J. H. Matheson) not to try again at that time—that it was hopeless in water so rough."

Word of the men's plight was flashed to Air-Sea Rescue at Vancouver, and an RCAF Neptune plane made three drops of emergency supplies to the marooned men. One fell into the sea; a second landed high on the rocky, wooded island. The third fell within reach.

WONDERFUL KIT

"That kit was wonderful," mate Betteridge said. "It contained shoes, sleeping bags, coffee, food and material for building a fire."

"When low tide came Lee was able to join the other three men. Next day landing parties were organized to pick up the four marooned men and two other hydrographers—Gordon Clark and Barry Lusk—who had been put ashore in a sheltered cove before the accidents.

The landing party went ashore about 3 p.m. Friday, a mile from where the men had spent the night, but the island is "so rough and the shores so precipitous that it was necessary to climb and scramble almost three times the distance to reach the men."

"We'd have had to carry them out if they hadn't had the boots from the rescue kit. As it was, it took so long to reach them that everyone spent that night ashore too."

Meanwhile an RCAF Canso had picked up Dr. John Palmer of Queen Charlotte city and landed him beside the Stewart.

He cared for Mr. Wills and first mate Betteridge and, when the marooned men arrived, for young Lee's banged forehead. The doctor offered to have them flown home, but they elected to stay.

Five came back. Harrowing experience north of Vancouver Island is now behind these men from survey ship William J. Stewart. Robert Lee, front, and hydrographer Ralph Wills, second, were hurled into water when dory overturned. Third man in dory was lost. Robert Mellis, Harold Tomren and Maurice Jacobson, behind, made rescue effort in second dory, were marooned. — (Ryan Bros. photo).

During the rescue some members of the landing party made a close search of the coastline near the accident scene, but no trace of Watne's body was seen.

Two dories, 14 oars and a life raft were lost in the mishap.

William J. Stewart, now at the department of transport dock near the Johnson Street Bridge, is to go "back to work" later this week.

Charges of Sedition

Chiang's Political Rival Faces Sentence of Death

TAIPEI (UPI) — The leader of Formosa's first political opposition party was indicted by a military procurator yesterday on charges of sedition aimed at overthrowing the nationalist Chinese government.

The indictment against Lei Chen, opposition magazine publisher who organized the China Democratic party, was filed by procurator Ying Ching. Two associates of Lei were accused in the indictment of being communist agents.

The indictment said that Lei, arrested Sept. 4 by the Formosan garrison command, had denied charges he received instructions from alleged communist agents and claimed his magazine, Free China, was devoted to championing the cause of democracy and freedom.

The opposition leader faces a sentence ranging from 10 years imprisonment to death if convicted of the sedition charges.

Judge's Fatal Dressing Gown Inflammable as Sheet of Paper

VANCOUVER (CP) — A dressing gown worn by Mr. Justice Sidney Smith when he was burned to death 10 days ago was as inflammable as a sheet of newspaper, Coroner Glen McDonald said Monday.

The coroner said the material in the garment was light-weight, loosely-woven viscose rayon.

A coroner's inquiry found that the jurist died accidentally when a sleeve of his dressing gown touched an electric hotplate burner and caught fire.

Challenge To Reds Applauded

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker uncorked a vigorous Western counter-offensive against Soviet Premier Khrushchev Monday, accusing him of giving lip service to the United Nations while at the same time threatening to wreck it. (See also Page 21.)

The Canadian leader challenged Russia to resume negotiations on the "paramount" issue of disarmament and he won enthusiastic applause when he told Khrushchev to heed his own advice on colonialism.

POLICY SPEECH

Making Canada's policy speech before the 15th General Assembly, Diefenbaker was the first Western chief of government to reply in the UN to Khrushchev's demand that the office of UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld be scrapped and replaced by a triumvirate.

While the battle built up between East and West on the UN question, Hammarskjöld himself made a surprising entry in the assembly debate at the opening of Monday's session defending his impartiality, particularly in the Congo crisis.

GREAT HOPES

Diefenbaker said he had nourished great hopes for the visit of Khrushchev and had been prepared to accept "any good suggestion" from the Russian.

"I am not one who believes his suggestions should be rejected out of hand. I was disappointed."

Khrushchev had engaged in a "gigantic propaganda drama of destructive misrepresentation, launched a major offensive in the cold war while giving lip service to the United Nations which, in Canada's opinion, would be destroyed by his proposal for a triumvirate."

PROLONGED APPLAUSE

Diefenbaker received prolonged applause at the end of his address.

Khrushchev was not present when Diefenbaker spoke, having left the assembly to attend a luncheon given by Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland financier.

But the Russian chieftain was there when Czechoslovakia's President Antonin Novotny — first of the Eastern European Communist leaders to take the rostrum — supported the Russian proposals and the attack on Hammarskjöld.

Argentina's Foreign Minister Diogenes Taboada, however, praised Hammarskjöld for "impartiality, wisdom and firmness."

U.S. Will Fight If Base Grabbed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, said yesterday the United States would fight back "very fast" if Cuban Premier Fidel Castro tried to seize the big U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba.

Although he did not outline what kind of action this country would take, he said "we wouldn't have to move off the base."

At the same time, Sen. George Smathers urged that the American republics set up a military force composed of personnel from both North and South American nations as a barrier against possible aggression by Castro's Cuban army.

Threat to the huge naval base was raised last week by Raul Castro, who said Fidel Castro had been insulted in New York and that Cuba could retaliate by throwing the United States out of Guantanamo.

Smoky in Cat Fight

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Where there's smoke there's fire . . . but Oak Bay council came under fire last night for firing Smoky.

Not Smoky the Bear who fights forest fires, but Oak Bay's Smoky the Cat who has been official greeter and rodent eradicator at Fisher's confectionery store, 2205 Oak Bay Avenue, for the past 14 months.

Director Langlois said police had received a tip a week before the robbery that the hold-up was planned. Four detectives had been posted to watch the building every day.

In spite of the guard, the gunmen entered the building, committed the robbery and made their escape. He said they passed several of the hidden detectives without drawing fire.

The council last night gave final reading to a "Food and Food Establishment Sanitation Bylaw" which excludes animals from food stores.

It received and filed a petition signed by Smoky's owner, Mrs. L. M. Fisher and almost 180 other persons, asking for Smoky to be specifically excluded from the provisions of the bylaw.

"While we do not presume to question the merits of this proposed bylaw, we do feel it has been slanted in our direction due to the fact that our pet cat Smoky is the only cat we know of in Oak Bay who acts as official greeter and rodent catcher on his owner's business premises," the petition stated.

BEFORE BYLAW

" . . . As Smoky was in residence here before the proposed health bylaw was introduced and no one has suffered any ill effects from his presence, we respectfully request that our beloved pet, Smoky, be allowed to remain with us at 2205 Oak Bay Avenue to continue his good work as rodent guard and catcher."

Told last night that the bylaw had passed and Smoky would have to stay out of the

DAN CAMPBELL

Westwood, Campbell, Corbett

Social Credit yesterday made a clean sweep of three cliffhanging constituencies whose results were still in doubt after vote-counting ended temporarily on the night of Sept. 12.

Counting of absentee ballots in the three ridings yesterday brought official declarations from the trio of returning officers.

TINY MARGINS

Declared re-elected by tiny margins over CCF adversaries in all three ridings were Recreation and Conservation Minister Earle C. Westwood in Nanaimo and the Islands, Dan Campbell in Comox and Irvine F. Corbett in Yale.

CCF candidates in Yale and Comox are expected to seek official recounts.

Mr. Westwood saw his 112-vote lead of Sept. 12 cut to a mere 70 votes yesterday.

SLIPPED BACK

Mr. Corbett slipped back into office on the strength of a 25-vote majority and Mr. Campbell with an edge of 38 votes.

Following announcement of the Comox result shortly after 2 p.m. yesterday the constituency's CCF candidate, Frank Wood, said he would seek a recount.

Following the initial count on Sept. 12, Social Credit's Campbell had a 116-vote lead over Mr. Wood, and CCF Leader Robert Strachan had strong hopes his party would win the seat when the absentee ballots were counted.

BENNETT BEAMS

Premier Bennett yesterday beamed at reporters who met him in a legislative buildings hallway and informed him of Mr. Westwood's narrow victory, but appeared unsurprised. Asked if he didn't think the Nanaimo and Comox victories were particularly significant because of the heavy labor vote in both ridings, he smiled and said, "I thought the entire outcome of the election was significant."

WESTWOOD PLEASED

Mr. Westwood told the Colonist, "I was particularly pleased because there is so much to be done in my particular field in B.C."

He said the conservation and recreation department "is still relatively new and we have a great deal to do."

CAME AS SURPRISE

Results in the three ridings came as a surprise to many because it was thought the absentee ballots would be overwhelmingly for the CCF candidates.

Nanaimo and Comox absentee voters were largely loggers and commercial fishermen, traditional CCF supporters.

Final count in Nanaimo was Westwood 4,621, Cameron 4,551, Mortinson (Comm.) 70, Heath (L) 1,036, Strongtharm (PC) 605.

In Comox the count was Campbell 6,102, Wood 6,064, Baikie (L) 2,747, Higgin (Comm.) 207, Gray (PC) 965.

Yale results were Corbett 1,126, MacDougall (CCF) 1,101, Collett (L) 964, Lauder (PC) 388.

Red Man on the Moon? 'Historic' Answer Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—Speculations about a man on the moon mounted Monday with Russia's announcement that today will be important in world history.

Exactly what the Russians are up to is a secret. Guesses include the possibility that they may reveal a human being in orbit or already on the moon.

Khrushchev's trips aboard in the past have been accompanied by announcements of Soviet scientific achievements. And he told reporters Sunday that "everything is ready" for a Soviet attempt to put a man in space.

Moscow radio for days has been broadcasting that today is a day to be watched. Ham radio operators in the United States have received Moscow radio messages telling them to pay attention to today which it said Russia will make "a day in the history of the world."

Church 'Asset' Kills Pension for Builder

Turns Out To Be Liability

By CHARLES THOMPSON
DUNCAN — A retired businessman here claimed yesterday that he is being discriminated against by the government because he built a church.

George Turner laughed when he explained that an investigator for the department of veterans' affairs classed his non-completed church as an asset.

SPIRITUAL VALUE

"The church has no commercial value, only a spiritual one," he explained during an angry denunciation of the government branch.

"The church was started with a legacy. 'This enabled me to start a church which I considered my duty to God and man.'"

IN VAIN

But the actions of his fellow men in the government service almost made him take God's name in vain.

"Because I built the church I have been denied the right to receive the burned-out pension to which I consider I am legally entitled," Mr. Turner maintains.

DON'T BEND

In 1946 he was discharged from the army with five smashed discs. He was warned "don't bend, don't jump and don't lift anything heavy" and given a $28.50-a-month pension.

"However, I built a general store, operated it for a while, later leased it and finally sold it." Now he's broke.

DENIED PENSION

"My financial condition was investigated by an official of the DVA at Victoria and finally denied the pension on the grounds that my assets exceeded that allowed by its act," he said. "However, I insisted, and still do, that a liability cannot be an asset."

"The taxes on it are $155 a year, which certainly makes it a liability. It does not and cannot produce any income. Therefore it is impossible for it to be an asset."

NOT COMPLETED

The church, beside his small Norcross Road home north of here, is still not completed inside and no services are held in it.

After a story in the Colonist that the church was for sale, a DVA official "flew" to Duncan and asked him to sign a form that if the church was sold the money would be used again to build a church.

NOT BEEN SOLD

Mr. Turner signed. The church has not been sold. And in the Colonist article he promised to build a church in another area if he could sell it so it would ultimately be completed.

"I took this matter up with the prime minister of Canada, and the minister of veterans' affairs, with the plea that they revise the decision made by the officials of the veterans' affairs in Victoria. This they refused to do."

SPECIFIC REASON

"The War Veterans' Allowance Act was brought into being for a specific reason, that of assisting older veterans financially. But, owing to the amendments, additions and clauses inserted in it, its purpose has been modified to such a degree that its original purpose has been destroyed."

"I think this is rank injustice. More so owing to the fact that the church was not built by Canadian funds but by money received from England."

"The church is not completed yet, and anyone wishing to assist in its completion would be very much appreciated."

IWA Rally Opens Today

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 23rd annual regional convention of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) opens here today with 135 delegates from logging camps and lumber mills throughout British Columbia and Alberta attending.

PORT ALBERNI — "Many of our merchants are too lax in accepting cheques, not knowing whether they are good or bad," City Prosecutor E. A. Dinsmore said in police court here yesterday.

He said that merchants, apparently so anxious to sell their goods that they accept cheques without question, are more or less aiding and abetting in offences against the Criminal Code.

Mr. Dinsmore made the statement following the conviction of John Edward Williams of a false pretences charge involving passing of a worthless cheque. Williams was sentenced by Magistrate W. E. McLeod to two months.

Two four-month sentences to run concurrent with two similar terms imposed recently in Courtenay were handed out by Magistrate MacLeod to Adam Grant Cunningham on similar charges.

Duncan Church Plans Concert

DUNCAN — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church choir will present a concert Oct. 29 at 8 p.m. in Queen Margaret's School gym. Reginald Stone of Victoria and Dorothy Cook, Duncan, will also be on the program.

Court Changes Hunter's Plea Then Dismisses Charge

DUNCAN — Magistrate A. C. Sutton changed a hunter's plea from guilty to not guilty in court yesterday then dismissed a case against him of having a deer that wasn't tagged.

Joseph A. Guilbot, Victoria, said he put a metal tag in the animal's ear but failed to pull one end of it back to make it lock.

Neither police nor the game warden, William Fowkes, could make the tag work in court. Mr. Fowkes said the tag was on the carcass but that when he touched it the tag fell open.

Building Good

Nanaimo Job Picture Looks Fairly Bright

NANAIMO — The employment picture in the Nanaimo area looks fairly bright according to national employment service officials.

Ray Lawrence, acting manager of the Nanaimo office, said in his monthly report that although the situation is generally satisfactory the present labor supply is sufficient to take care of local needs. At the present time there are 582 men and 225 women registered as seeking work compared with 531 men and 233 women a year ago.

Conditions in the construction industry will continue favorable with the building of the new Nanaimo Regional Hospital and the installation of the new sewer system. Also aiding this industry is the building of a new medical centre and two new supermarkets, all of which are well under way.

Port Alberni

Anglers Catch Tons of Fish

PORT ALBERNI — More than seven tons of fish have been weighed in by sports fishermen at Port Alberni since the start of the season here since the tyee season opened at the beginning of August. Alex Underdown, president of Alberni Valley Tyee Club, reported here this week.

He said that, of the total, club members accounted for 5,000 pounds.

End of the season is in sight with the main derby scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 2. Members with the 100 largest tyee caught during the season are qualified to enter the derby, which opens at daylight and closes at 12 noon.

The windup banquet will take place in Greenwood Hotel the same evening, when the season's trophies and buttons will be presented.

Stiffer 'Silly Season' Hunting Rules Urged

A plea for more rigid control of hunting licences has been made by T. I. Hughes, executive secretary, SPCA, at the opening of what he refers to as the "silly season."

"Already," he says, "we have had a report of a man being killed in mistake for a bear; of a young boy shot in the leg by his companion; of a bullet smashing through the rear window of a magistrate's car—and this before the season has begun on the coast."

On the other side of the picture, says Mr. Hughes, are the animals and birds to whom unnecessary suffering is caused "by these same irresponsible hunters."

As examples he cited a deer shot 27 times before it finally died, and a bear shot with a target arrow which was finally tracked down and put out of its misery hours later.

"All responsible people," Mr.

Hughes went on, "including magistrates, police officers, game department officials, fish and gun club officers, are fully aware of this problem."

"I realize, of course, that as long as there is shooting there will be accidents, but surely steps can be taken to reduce their number and make it more difficult for some of the more irresponsible people to obtain shooting licences."

"Surely a test could easily be instituted which could determine whether the person concerned was at least competent to handle a gun safely, and possessed adequate eyesight. "The mechanics of such a test could easily be handled by the fish and game clubs, with funds made available by the department of recreation and conservation."

"At present, there is nothing to stop a man incapable of seeing more than a few feet, and without any knowledge of game, game laws or safety precautions, from obtaining a licence which may result in the death of some perfectly innocent person."

"We do not allow such incompetent people to drive motor vehicles. Why do we allow firearms to be used so recklessly?"

RAY DAGGETT

Clawed at Hunter

Big, Angry Cougar Will Soon Be Rug

It may have been a messy job last night for 23-year-old Ray Daggett, 263 Regina, but it was a pleasant one—skinning a large cougar which almost got him first.

Today he plans to have the hide—without the head or paws—tanned. He'll use it for a rug.

Hunting deer near Glinz Lake Sunday morning, Mr. Daggett jumped onto a log to see over some dense brush. At the other end of the log—about six feet away—was a snarling female cougar.

"I had a 44.40 pump Remington," Mr. Daggett said last night. "My first bullet just grazed her face and made her all the madder."

"She began clawing at me with one paw. I shot her again and it knocked her off the log. She began thrashing in the brush alongside me and I shot her again."

"I pumped seven shots into her—all I had. Every time she moved I let her have another."

The cat weighed about 80 pounds and was almost seven feet from nose to the tip of her tail.

"It was all over in a minute but I was shaking like a leaf for a while," he said. "I figure she must have had cubs and I may have come too close to them."

Registration Slow

Civic Voters' List Closes on Friday

Victoria civic voters list will close at 5 p.m. Friday and City Clerk M. F. Hunter said yesterday, "at the present rate of registration we're going to be short of a lot of names."

Of 1,900 forms sent to resident and tenant electors to confirm their continued eligibility, he said, 400 have not been returned.

And, he said, only 157 new tenant or resident electors had registered yesterday. Registration opened at the beginning of August.

But last year, he noted, there were 525 new registrations and "about half of them were in the last four days."

Pedestrian Suffers Shock, Head Injuries

A 75-year-old pedestrian who suffered shock and undetermined head injuries after being struck by a truck yesterday morning, was reported "resting comfortably" last night at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Florence Whitmore, a resident at the Empress Hotel, apparently was crossing Gordon at Broughton when she was in collision with a truck driven by Joseph D. Williams, 1025 Terrace, according to police reports.

Would Have Been Illegal

Child Deal Quite Possible

If a Victoria couple had agreed to an offer of $17,500 for one of their children, a provincial welfare official said yesterday, the deal possibly—although illegally—could have gone through.

Bernhard Schiphorst, 119 South Turner, a delegate to a

Roman Catholic family life conference in Banff, said Saturday that he had twice been offered deals for adoption of one of his children.

First offer was from a Toronto subdivision owner who proposed giving him a furnished house for the baby, he said, and second from a real estate salesman in Victoria who offered $17,500 cash.

If Mr. and Mrs. Schiphorst had accepted and arranged a private adoption, the provincial official said, the sale of the child would have been a criminal offence. But on the other hand, evidence of the transaction, sufficient for prosecution, might never have come to light.

The Schiphorst didn't consider the proposals.

Mr. Schiphorst said he refused to discuss the matter with the two men because "children belong to their parents."

Beaten Pair Examined

Ronald Gill and Jack Crabbe, both of 1739 Hollywood Crescent, were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for a checkup yesterday after they were beaten about their heads and arms yesterday afternoon by a man wielding a light-weight poker. Neither was seriously injured, said police.

A suspect was later taken to city police station for questioning.

City Told To Drop 'Business'

Parks committee will recommend that the city get out of the flower-basket "business," Victoria has been in the "business" to the extent of supplying flower baskets and boxes at cost to city firms for their private beautification of their premises and the streets outside the regular flower-basket zones.

But while the city was the only available supplier when the practice was instituted, Parks Administrator W. H. Warren told the committee yesterday, several commercial sources are now ready to supply the baskets.

Besides, he said, the park nurseries haven't the capacity to continue to carry the load.

The committee also:

• Tabled for further study a proposal that additional roads in Beacon Hill Park should be closed to motor traffic on summer weekends.

• Asked Mr. Warren for a report after receiving a request from Stanley Davison, 827 Villance, for relocation of equipment in Quadra Heights playground. The equipment, Mr. Davison said, is concentrated close to his fence, and he complained of noise until 10 or 10:30 p.m. and debris coming "fast and furious" over the fence.

• Approved attendance of parks foremen at a training institute in Victoria from Oct. 12 to 15.

• Refused a request for permission to rent horses at Thetis Lake, for fear of deterioration of trails.

• Decided to look farther into an inquiry about the possibility of Ross Bay cemetery maintenance being let out to contract.

Around the Island

Nanaimo Business Holds Up Despite Ferry Competition

NANAIMO—Business in the Nanaimo area has pretty well held up this year, although National Employment Service official Ray Lawrence, says that the new government ferries operating from Swartz Bay to Tsawwassen have reduced the traffic on the ferries in and out of Nanaimo.

It is felt that this will be temporary as the tourist bureau reports an 11 per cent increase over last year in the number of visitors calling at the office. The normal seasonal decline has been felt by most retail and catering businesses. Automobile firms state that their sales have been satisfactory and inventories are low.

DUNCAN — Wesley Roy Abercrombie, operator of a taxi business, was charged yesterday with keeping liquor for sale in a car.

He pleaded not guilty. Trial was set for Oct. 4. Police warned Abercrombie not to sell his taxi because if found guilty the vehicle could be seized by the Crown.

PORT ALBERNI — Leonard Ralph Brookhart was given a year's suspended sentence when he was convicted of assault in Port Alberni court yesterday.

Brookhart was arrested and charged Sept. 14 after Walter Mealey of Port Alberni was hospitalized with concussion and other injuries following an incident on Second Avenue South.

The accused, who conducted his own defence, admitted that he had struck Mealey twice after, he said, he had found the man embracing Brookhart's common-law wife on the street.

Remanded without plea were Robert Maurice Lamb, Robert Christian Jensen and Kenneth Croft, charged with obstructing police officers. Bail of $500 with one surety was set for Jensen and Croft, while two sureties of $250 were required for Lamb. Lamb was also charged with being intoxicated in a public place, and the case was remanded.

Jensen pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance in a cafe and was fined $25. Conviction of Douglas Lloyd Leslie as a minor entering licensed premises cost the young man $10 and, because the offence broke terms of a suspended sentence, 30 days in jail.

DUNCAN — An 11-year-old convertible was wrecked at 1:30 a.m. Sunday on Glenora Road when it went out of control on a curve, police said.

Driver was Stanley Earl Dougan, Telegraph Road. Passengers Gary Mutter, Sharon Williams, Evelyn Ashley and Dale Robertson received only minor cuts and bruises.

DUNCAN — Truck driver W. E. A. MacDonald, of Parksville, had his driver's licence suspended for 30 days yesterday for speeding.

"People are getting killed because of this foolish driving," said Magistrate A. C. Sutton when MacDonald pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding at 78 in a 60-zone on the Trans-Canada Highway Friday near Mill Bay.

MacDonald was fined for speeding Sept. 9. "You can't learn a lesson, eh?" asked the magistrate. Fine this time was $45.

Leslie Readman, Victoria, also had his licence suspended for 30 days and was fined $45.

for driving at the same speed and day as MacDonald.

Also in court, fined $45 each for speeding were William Pearce, Victoria, and Robert E. Wilson, Nanaimo. Fined $35 each for speeding were John B. Wormald and M. J. Sims, Victoria.

DUNCAN — Kenneth Jack, 22, of Ladysmith, had sentence suspended for two years in police court yesterday on a charge of stealing a car.

Magistrate A. C. Sutton indicated he was suspending sentence because it was Jack's first court appearance. But he imposed a $500 behaviour bond.

On a second charge, the magistrate imposed a $25 fine for driving without a licence.

And Michael Ready and Joseph Barracough, no fixed addresses, were sentenced to 30 days each when they could not pay $25 fines for being impaired in a public place.

DUNCAN — Employment in Cowichan is at a "higher level" now than it has been since June, National Employment Service figures show.

There are now 410 men out of work, compared with 981 a month ago. Women out of work increased from 153 to 167.

Little Boy's Face Cut When Hit by Duncan Car

DUNCAN — A five-year-old elementary student was struck by a car on Trunk Road here yesterday morning.

His mother "thanked God" he was alive and has called Mayor Jack Dobson requesting 15-mile-an-hour signs for the area between 8 and 9 a.m. and 2:30 to 4 p.m.

Resting at home with slight shock, a facial cut from his cheek to his lip and numerous cuts and bruises was Dale Joseph Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robertson, 1061 Chaster.

Police credited the quick reflexes of the driver, Walter Sked, Lakeview Drive, that the youth was not injured more. It occurred in a 30 zone near Campbell.

Stolen $5,000 Power Boat Could Catch Fire If Run

A $5,000, 35-foot power cruiser stolen from a Victoria mooring five days ago is in a dangerous condition and could catch fire if it is operated.

RCMP marine units on Vancouver Island and on the mainland have been alerted to watch for St. Roch II, owned by Gordon Massey, 132 Cadillac.

Lagging (insulation material) has not been installed about the exhaust pipes, posing a serious fire hazard. Mr. Massey intended to install the lagging this week.

Together with the boat, power tools, binoculars, a dinghy and an outboard motor were also stolen. Some of the

The St. Roch II was not insured. Mr. Massey, who bought the boat in May, intended waiting until it was ready for use before insuring it.

The boat was stolen from a mooring near McKay-Cormack overnight last Wednesday. Employees of the firm believed Mr. Massey had taken the boat when they found it was missing Thursday morning.

The theft was discovered at 6 p.m. Sunday, when Mr. Massey went to the mooring to work on the boat.

Mr. Massey, a government employee at HMC Dockyard, Esquimalt, had painted the boat white with green and brown trim.

In Love or Not Ferdinand's Mum

VANCOUVER (CP)—Love or not, Ferdinand will have to keep his trap shut. Ferdinand the alligator had his jaws closed with a muzzle recently after he began making rude noises at the other alligators in the Stanley Park Aquarium here, and even bit a turtle.

Curator Dr. Murray Newman said Monday he now believes Ferdinand was just a young bull alligator feeling his oats.

"He thinks it's springtime," said Dr. Newman. "He's just growing up and being aggressive with the other males."

Ferdinand's love affair came to light when Dr. Newman spotted Isabella, the only female in the pond, slither up and put her front leg on Ferdinand's shoulder.

"They were making small alligator noises. I don't understand the language but I think they like each other a lot."

In fact, the curator said, there may be a blessed event shortly.

But he's not taking off the muzzle because Ferdinand might be jealous of the other, unmuzzled males.

Vital Resolutions Go Through

Mayor Percy Scurrell was enthusiastic yesterday about results of the annual meeting of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Back in his office for the first time after the convention, he said the results "as far as we are concerned were very satisfactory because we got through the important resolutions we sponsored."

These included resolutions calling for allocation of a portion of income tax revenue to education and for settlement of disputes between municipalities and their policemen's and firemen's unions by arbitration boards instead of conciliation boards in the role of arbitrators.

Both were passed in amended form but, the mayor said, the amendments did no harm.

Victoria's original arbitration resolution proposed appointment of arbitration boards consisting of or headed by judges, and perhaps several permanent boards with regional jurisdictions.

"It was scrapped in that form because we felt it would confuse the delegates," the mayor said. "So we passed a simple resolution calling for arbitration under the Arbitration Act."

"It was definitely a victory on our part because the place was swarming with policemen and firemen lobbying against it."

The Way of the Worry-Free

The eyes of children brighten at the prospect of a trip by train.

For trains have charm—a strange mixture of majesty and friendliness and magnetism.

To a child, there's a wonderful freedom in a train—to move about, watch the enchanting scenery, discover the wonders of the water cooler, sample the fabulous wares of the candy man.

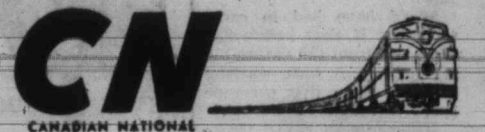

Ask the mother who rides with Canadian National Railways—why does she? Many will be her reasons —privacy, roominess, comfort, assurance. She will tell you that she leaves anxiety behind, that for her it is the way of the worry-free.

Even Dad gets a holiday—from long hours behind the wheel, the battle of the crowded road, the fatigue, the tension.

For each in his own way it is this feeling of freedom and assurance that is making so many of today's motorists say: "When it's over 100 miles, I take the train".

Challenge To Reds Applauded

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker uncorked a vigorous Western counter-offensive against Soviet Premier Khrushchev Monday, accusing him of giving lip service to the United Nations while at the same time threatening to wreck it. (See also Page 2.)

The Canadian leader challenged Russia to resume negotiations on the "paramount" issue of disarmament and he won enthusiastic applause when he told Khrushchev to heed his own advice on colonialism.

POLICY SPEECH

Making Canada's policy speech before the 15th General Assembly, Diefenbaker was the first Western chief of government to reply in the UN to Khrushchev's demand that the office of UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld be scrapped and replaced by a triumvirate.

While the battle built up between East and West on the UN question, Hammarskjöld himself made a surprising entry in the assembly debate at the opening of Monday's session defending his impartiality, particularly in the Congo crisis.

GREAT HOPES

Diefenbaker said he had nourished great hopes for the visit of Khrushchev and had been prepared to accept "any good suggestion" from the Russian.

"I am not one who believes his suggestions should be rejected out of hand. I was disappointed."

Khrushchev had engaged in a "gigantic propaganda drama of destructive misrepresentation, launched a major offensive in the cold war while giving lip service to the United Nations which, in Canada's opinion, would be destroyed by his proposal for a triumvirate."

PROLONGED APPLAUSE

Diefenbaker received prolonged applause at the end of his address.

Khrushchev was not present when Diefenbaker spoke, having left the assembly to attend a luncheon given by Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland financier.

But the Russian chieftain was there when Czechoslovakia's President Antonin Novotny — first of the Eastern European Communist leaders to take the rostrum — supported the Russian proposals and the attack on Hammarskjöld.

Argentina's Foreign Minister Diogenes Taborda, however, praised Hammarskjöld for "impartiality, wisdom and firmness."

U.S. Will Fight If Base Grabbed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, said yesterday the United States would fight back "very fast" if Cuban Premier Fidel Castro tried to seize the big U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba.

Although he did not outline what kind of action this country would take, he said "we wouldn't have to move off the base." (See Page 8.)

At the same time, Sen. George Smathers urged that the American republics set up a military force composed of personnel from both North and South American nations

as a barrier against possible aggression by Castro's Cuban army.

Threat to the huge naval base was raised last week by Raul Castro, who said Fidel Castro had been insulted in New York and that Cuba could retaliate by throwing the United States out of Guantanamo.

Red Man on the Moon? 'Historic' Answer Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—Speculations about a man on the moon mounted Monday with Russia's announcement that today will be important in world history.

Exactly what the Russians are up to is a secret. Guesses include the possibility that they may reveal a human being is in orbit or already on the moon.

Khrushchev's trips abroad in the past have been accompanied by announcements of Soviet scientific achievements. And he told reporters Sunday that "everything is ready" for a Soviet attempt to put a man in space.

Moscow radio for days has been broadcasting that today is a day to be watched. Ham radio operators in the United States have received Moscow radio messages telling them to pay attention to today which it said Russia will make "a day in the history of the world."

Big Blaze Injures Firemen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five firemen suffered minor injuries Monday night when the second floor of a building collapsed during a $1,000,000, three-alarm fire in central Vancouver.

Fireman Ron Williams, 27, was taken to hospital with a leg cut, suffered when he was forced to leap from a window as the roof of the building collapsed at the height of the blaze.

The blaze broke out in the industrial section in the wholesale drygoods building of Hamilton Harvey Ltd. Goods inside were insured for $500,000.

Third Tally Likely

Social Credit yesterday made a clean sweep of three cliffhanging constituencies whose results were still in doubt after vote-counting ended temporarily on the night of Sept. 12.

Counting of absentee ballots in the three ridings yesterday brought official declarations from the trio of returning officers.

TINY MARGINS

Declared re-elected by tiny margins over CCF adversaries in all three ridings were Recreation and Conservation Minister Earle C. Westwood in Nanaimo and the Islands, Dan Campbell in Comox and Irvine F. Corbett in Yale.

CCF candidates in Yale and Comox are expected to seek official recounts.

Mr. Westwood saw his 112-vote lead of Sept. 12 cut to a mere 70 votes yesterday.

SLIPPED BACK

Mr. Corbett slipped back into office on the strength of a 25-vote majority and Mr. Campbell with an edge of 38 votes.

Following announcement of the Comox result shortly after 2 p.m. yesterday the constituency's CCF candidate, Frank Wood, said he would seek a recount.

Following the initial count on Sept. 12 Social Credit's Campbell had a 116-vote lead over Mr. Wood, and CCF Leader Robert Strachan had strong hopes his party would win the seat when the absentee ballots were counted.

WESTWOOD PLEASED

Mr. Westwood told the Colonist, "I was particularly pleased because there is so much to be done in my particular field in B.C."

The three victories confirmed party standings in the new legislature as Social Credit 32, CCF 16 and Liberals 4.

Results in the three ridings came as a surprise to many because it was thought the absentee ballots would be overwhelmingly for the CCF candidates.

CCF SUPPORTERS

Nanaimo and Comox absentee voters were largely loggers and commercial fishermen, traditional CCF supporters.

Final count in Nanaimo was Westwood 4,621, Cameron 4,551, Mortinson (Comm.) 70, Heath (L) 1,036, Strongitharm (PC) 605.

Detectives Ready But Robbers Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Police director J. Albert Langlois Monday announced a shakeup in the holdup squad because of a $50,000 robbery last Friday in a building guarded by four detectives.

The robbery was at the Provincial Transport Company's east end terminal. Three masked gunmen escaped with the company's weekly payroll 10 minutes after an armored car had delivered it.

Director Langlois said police had received a tip a week before the robbery that the hold-up was planned. Four detectives had been posted to watch the building every day.

In spite of the guard, the gunmen entered the building, committed the robbery and made their escape. He said they passed several of the hidden detectives without drawing fire.

Blood Bank Halts Victoria Shipments

VANCOUVER (CP)—A serious shortage of blood has resulted in cancellation of shipments to Victoria hospitals, the Canadian Red Cross said here Monday. Apathy on the part of many donors has been blamed for the current shortage.

Smoky in Cat Fight

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Where there's smoke there's fire... but Oak Bay council came under fire last night for firing Smoky.

Not Smoky the Bear who fights forest fires, but Oak Bay's Smoky the Cat who has been official greeter and rodent eradicator at Fisher's confectionery store, 2205 Oak Bay Avenue, for the past 14 months.

FINAL READING

The council last night gave final reading to a "Food and Food Establishment Sanitation Bylaw" which excludes animals from food stores.

It received and filed a petition signed by Smoky's owner, Mrs. L. M. Fisher and almost 180 other persons, asking for Smoky to be specifically excluded from the provisions of the bylaw.

"While we do not presume to question the merits of this proposed bylaw, we do feel it has been slanted in our direction due to the fact that our pet cat Smoky is the only cat we know of in Oak Bay who acts as official greeter and rodent catcher on his owner's business premises," the petition stated.

BEFORE BYLAW

"... As Smoky was in residence here before the proposed health bylaw was introduced and no one has suffered any ill effects from his presence, we respectfully request that our beloved pet, Smoky, be allowed to remain with us at 2205 Oak Bay Avenue to continue his good work as rodent guard and catcher."

Told last night that the bylaw had passed and Smoky would have to stay out of the store, Mrs. Fisher emphatically denied it.

"Oh no he doesn't," she said. "He will not get out. We are going to fight this, believe you me."

NO MICE

"We haven't seen a mouse since we got him... and we had plenty before. There isn't a thing unwrapped in our store. We have a cover on the (deep) freezer and he sits there all day."

The Municipal Act, which provides for health regulations similar to those passed last night by Oak Bay council, also prohibits council making any exceptions to its bylaws.
